The Washington

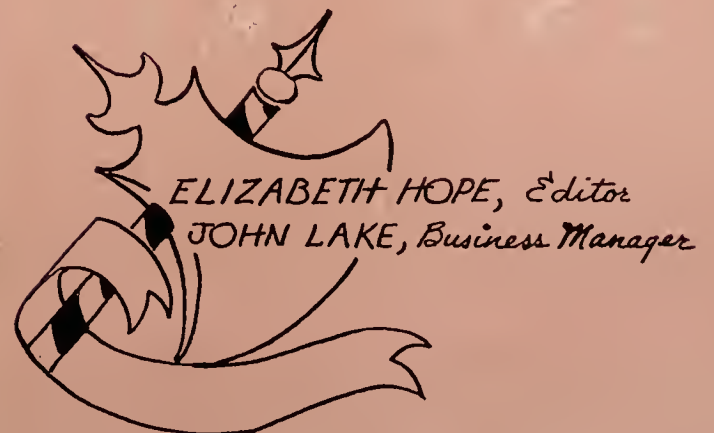

We Know . . .

This is the Washington we know. A world apart from the clamor and jangle of the commercial struggle; a university of traditions with its stone-walled buildings shaded by sturdy oaks; with its shadowed walks and quiet calm. Yet traditions are made and broken by progress. Here at Washington may be found the scene of questing experiments and exhaustive study; a progress in learning and intellectual achievement.

We may see around us the familiar scenes of a social world jammed with gaiety, laughter, and emotion, yet mingled with a changing panorama. But learning is not content to dwell in such material surroundings — these buildings depicted on the following pages serve only to symbolize a higher aspect of learning—attaining strength through truth.

To Washington

Dr. Carl Ferdinand Cori, one of the world's outstanding biochemists, shared the 1947 Nobel Prize in medicine and physiology with his wife. The Coris investigated and established the cycle which is required to change glucose into glycogen and glycogen into glucose. This information is essential for the study of any disease connected with sugar metabolism.

Dr. Gerty Theresa Cori won the 1947 Nobel Prize in medicine and physiology jointly with her husband for their research in carbohydrate metabolism, the study of how the body goes about using its fuel supply of starches and sugars. She was the first woman to win the Nobel Prize in medicine and the Coris were the first husband and wife team in America to win a Nobel Prize.

Dr. Joseph Erlanger was winner of the 1944 Nobel Prize in medicine and physiology for his research into the actions and impulses of nerves. His most outstanding contribution in medicine is the development of a method of applying a cathode ray oscillograph to the study of nerves. Although now retired from his teaching post as Professor of Physiology, Dr. Erlanger is continuing his research work.

Dr. Arthur Holly Compton, Chancellor of Washington University, won the 1927 Nobel Prize for his contribution in Physics. He established the fact that X-rays are dual in nature; that is, when traveling, they act as waves, and when reacting with matter, they behave as particles. This work was done in the physics laboratory of Washington U. while Dr. Compton was head of the department.

James J. Ritterskamp, Jr.

Arno Haack

Charles Belknap, Vice-Chancellor of the University, besides being a fan of Washington University in general, is particularly interested in Washington's sports program and follows all the athletic teams closely. In summer, though, he likes to go to New England and indulge in his own favorite sports of sailing and deep sea fishing.

Arno Haack, Director of Student Affairs since 1947, had previously been in the executive branch of the Campus Y. He is a member of Alpha Kappa Lambda, a social fraternity, and Omicron Delta Kappa. Aside from his work with the students, he enjoys spending his spare time in his home workshop as an amateur carpenter.

Washington University

James J. Ritterskamp, Jr., in addition to teaching accounting, acts as purchasing agent for Washington University. A true lover of St. Louis, Mr. Ritterskamp prefers his gardening in the city to a summer vacation away from home.

Edward K. Graham, Dean of Faculties, graduated from the University of North Carolina. He received his Ph.D. from Cornell University, where he later served as assistant to the President and Secretary of the University. His hobbies are camping and trout fishing.

Dr. Thomas K. Blackwell serves as Secretary-Treasurer of the Corporation and is responsible for the school's financial arrangements. Formerly he was president of the Association of University and College Business Officers, and he edited a Manual on College and University Business Administration.

Administrators

Elair Gullion, Washington University's Director of Physical Education and Athletics, and head basketball coach, began his fourth year here by coaching the Bears to the most successful basketball season in their history. Mr. Gullion, who received his B.S. in Education from Purdue University, would like to see morale at Washington rise, and feels that the provision of additional directors and facilities for activities by the school would do much to accomplish this.

Dean William Glasgow Bowling has been with Washington University since 1925 and has served as Dean of Admissions for the past two years. Previously he served as Dean of the University College and then as Dean of the College of Liberal Arts. His hobby is cinephotography, which he uses for the benefit of the school by taking motion pictures of our athletic events. He has also taken a series of color movies about his home town, St. Louis, and Vermont where he spends his vacations.

Adele Chomeau Starbird is the competent Dean of Women and the Head of McMillan Hall. Her many interests include music, which she studied in Strasbourg and Paris, traveling, and gardening. As an extra-curricular activity, Dean Starbird is a columnist for the Star-Times.

Douglas Vass Martin, Jr., Director of Public Relations, is a Washington University alumnus and former staff member of Hatchet and Student Life. He's an avid promoter of the Alumni Fund, which has accumulated $360,000 since he originated it in 1933.

O. H. Wagner, Registrar, received his A.B. from Parsons College and M.A. from the University of Iowa. A newcomer to his position, Mr. Wagner assumed the office of Registrar last fall after three years as an advisor in the Special Veterans Program.

Professor Werner Hochwald

Professor Joseph W. Kennedy, head of the Chemistry Department, is well known for his work as co-discoverer of plutonium. In 1946 Professor Kennedy came to Washington University from Los Alamos, New Mexico, where he was engaged in atomic research. For relaxation Professor Kennedy likes to play tennis and is an avid basketball and football fan.

Dr. Arthur Hughes, head of the Physics Department, is a man of wide and general interests. In addition to leading his department, he occupies his time doing research work in nuclear physics, and giving talks on physics and atomic energy. Consequently, he has little time to pursue his hobbies, traveling and photography.

Washington University

Professor Hochwald, acting head of the Economics Department, who has been teaching at Washington University since the war, is a most interesting and intriguing person to talk with. Because of the hard press of his work Professor Hochwald finds little time for relaxation and reading books, which is his favorite hobby. Besides attending Washington University Professor Hochwald also graduated from the University of Berlin and the University of Strausberg.

Professor Walter J. Leighton was born in Toledo, Ohio, received his college education at Northwestern and Harvard Universities, and has been head of our Math Department for two years. Before coming to Washington he taught at Harvard, Rice Institute, and the University of Rochester. During the war he did research at Columbia and Northwestern. In his spare time he plays bridges and tries to "sneak off" for a little fishing.

Dr. Carl Tolman, Dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences and Chairman of the Department of Geology, had been at Washington U. since 1927. A member of Sigma Xi and Tau Beta Pi, he took his undergraduate work at the University of British Columbia and his graduate work at Yale. Dr. Tolman likes both Washington University and its students very well.

Dr. Roland G. Usher, head of the History Department since 1912, is completing his forty-second and final year with the University. Always modern and changing with the times, he became one of the first local news reviewers on television. In his forthcoming retirement, Dr. Usher plans to edit some unpublished works of Francis Bacon.

Dr. Guy A. Cardwell, new head of the English Department and formerly with the University of Maryland, is very enthusiastic about the great amount of school spirit at W.U. He claims that this spirit which holds together both the faculty and student body, is lacking in comparable metropolitan universities.

Dr. Herbert Dieckmann, head of the Romance Language Department, has many and varied interests. He claims photography, especially of old and rare literary texts, as his chief hobby, but also expresses a fondness for world travel. As far sports, nothing, says Dr. Dieckmann, can surpass mountain climbing!

Dr. Frank Lee Wright, head of the Department of Education, has been affiliated with Washington University since 1924. He is a past president of the Webster Groves Board of Education, is listed in "Who's Who In America," and enjoys travelling and cutting silhouettes.

Professor Stuart A. Queen

Dr. Phillip H. DeLacy

Professor Stuart A. Queen, head of the Sociology and Anthropology Department, also heads the Basic College Program. Although kept busy by these two jobs, he found time last summer to vacation in a small Colorado town. The information collected on this trip is being used by students of his department for their research work.

The late Dr. Lewis Thomas, head of the Geography Department, was affiliated with Washington University thirty-one years until his death, February 13, 1950. The students, who proclaimed him "one of the best professors on campus," will long remember him as an outstanding member of the Geography Department.

Department Heads

This is Dr. Bunch's first year as head of the Washington University Department of Psychology. He taught previously at the University of Illinois. The degrees which Dr. Bunch has received are a B.A. from the University of Kentucky, an M.A. from Washington University, and a Ph.D. from the University of Chicago. Dr. Bunch devotes his spare time to horses, which are his hobby. Much of his time is spent in connection with the many psychological societies to which he belongs.

Dr. George E. Mylonas is the chairman of the Art and Archaeology Department. All his energy and time are spent bringing the ancient civilizations back to life, and with the clearing situation in Greece, he soon hopes to continue his excavations there. Carried away with enthusiasm, he even instructs his students to dig up their back yards, questing for the "missing link."

Dr. A. Gwendolyn Drew is the attractive head of the Women's Physical Education Division. Popular with all her students, this lively lady shows an extreme interest in all the phases of her program and she is seen everywhere from the hockey field to the dance floor to the swimming pool. Every chance she has, Miss Drew vacations at her Hamlin Lake summer home near Ludington, Michigan. Who wouldn't, with a perfect lake and an all-weather tennis court in his backyard?

Dr. Viktor Hamburger, head of the Department of Zoology, has been teaching at Washington University for fourteen years. He is the president of the Society for Growth and Development, which meets annually for a symposium. His leisure interests are widely divergent—art and "puttering around the garden."

Dr. Lewis E. Hahn, head of the Department of Philosophy, has made a good name for himself in the short time he has been at Washington. Although he is busy getting familiarized with his new position, he has found time for his duties as president of the Missouri State Philosophy Association. This doesn't leave much time for vacations, which he would like to spend taking long trips and camping out.

Dr. Phillip H. DeLacy, head of the Department of Classics, has come to Washington University after nine years at the University of Chicago. He is a graduate of the University of Washington, Seattle, and hopes to drive out to his old home there this summer.

Dr. Wenzil K. Dolva, chairman of the Department of Retailing, came to Washington University in 1946, after previously teaching in Denver and New York. He exhibits great interest in college affairs, and thinks that W.U. students are doing a good job bringing school spirit to a "street car" college.

School of Architecture

Under the direction of Joseph D. Murphy, Washington University's School of Architecture offers sound training and preparation for aspiring architects.

The prospective architects spend five years of their lives in or around the gray stone building known as Givens Hall, seldom venturing up on the hill, except for an occasional gym class and the perennial classes in surveying. Two or three times a year architects can be seen strung along the length and breadth of Washington's campus, checking and rechecking the measurements and dimensions of the School.

But in spite of all their protestations to the contrary, architectural students do not work all the time. To see the results of their gayer moments, one need only glimpse some hapless freshman student either staggering to class with the burden of a T-square hanging about his neck, or attempting to climb Givens' steps at an upper-class-imposed rate of one step back for every two up. Better yet, the visitor should arrange to be on hand to see the festivities attendant upon St. Fatima's Day. Fatima, patron of all architects, is considered properly feted only when the student body is decked out in appropriate costume and parading through the halls and around the grounds of the school.

On the more formal side, but still extra-curricular, are the various architectural organizations. Largest, and of prime importance, is the Architectural Society. Open to all students of the school, it serves to keep alive interest and a feeling of fellowship among the dwellers of Givens Hall. The initiation hazing for new members is considered one of the most hilarious affairs on campus—at least by those not experiencing it!

The two architectural honoraries are Alpha Alpha Gamma for women, and Scarab for men. To join the former, a girl must be in the upper one third of her class. Scarab, likewise, chooses its members from the upper strata.

And she's got ornaments!

Shaw's Garden

School of Botany

One of the best known schools of its kind, the Henry Shaw School of Botany draws students from many parts of the world to Rebstock Hall and the Missouri Botanical Garden. Endowed by Mr. Shaw, the school serves to integrate the scientific efforts of Washington University with those of the Garden.

On the undergraduate level, courses are offered in several fields: botany, horticulture and microbiology, to name a few. A bit more diversified, however, is the graduate curriculum which includes work in genetics, mycology, paleobotany, physiology and taxonomy. Various phases of investigation and research are also offered the graduate students, who are able to use the excellent Missouri Botanical Garden Herbarium and Library to great advantage in their work.

People who live in glass houses shouldn't . . .

Social life and fun are not forgotten in the School of Botany. Work and play are combined on the many field trips, picnics, weekend camping trips, and general "get-togethers" enjoyed by staff and students alike.

During the past 53 years, 74 doctorates have been granted by the School of Botany, and while a large portion of the recipients have taken teaching positions in colleges and universities, others have become engaged in industrial work, governmental appointments, and museum positions.

Heading this department of Washington University is Acting Dean Henry N. Andrew, Jr., a well known paleobotanist of this area.

Dean Henry N. Andrews, Jr.

The Business School

There is a section of Washington University, known as Duncker Hall, where the future businessmen of the country are getting their training. Since 1917, when the School of Commerce and Finance was founded, students have been studying Accounting, Political Science, and Economics, just to name a few, with an ambition to advance towards successful practice in commercial and industrial fields.

In 1926, the school's name was changed to the School of Business and Public Administration, but the name is the only thing that has stood still these past 24 years. For, since the small beginning that the school had, it has grown to a total of more than 770 students, and a full-time faculty of twenty members.

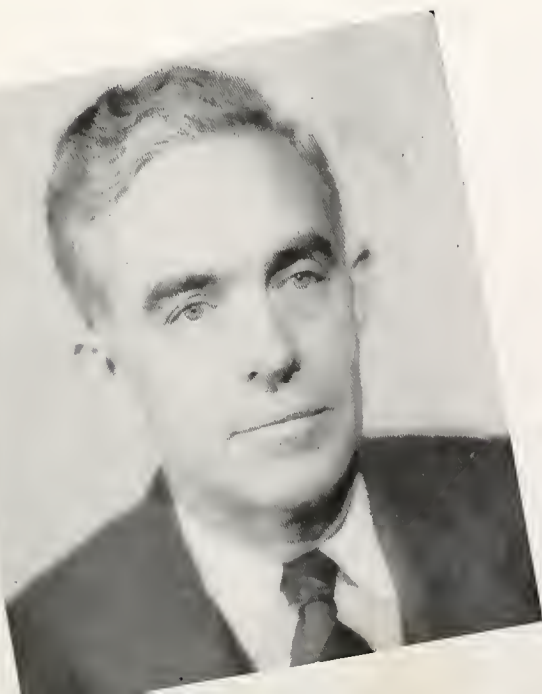

Duncker Hall

As one might expect, the Business School still has an eye for the future. An advisory committee of twenty-one prominent St. Louis businessmen has been appointed to help formulate plans for the future. This job of expansion is bigger than it sounds, but the nucleus has already been formed, and things are beginning to pop. A graduate program in business and public administration, leading to a Master's degree, is being planned.

The Business School is under the able direction of Dean Leslie J. Buchan, who came to us this year from Tulane University. No beginner in the administrative line, he held the position of Dean at Tulane for a number of years before coming to Washington University.

Dean Leslie James Buchan

The Retailing School

After four previous years under the wing of the Business School, the School of Retailing has now blossomed forth on its own. The school began with 35 undergraduate students, and now has an enrollment of 246 undergraduates and 12 graduate students.

The School of Retailing was initiated by downtown retailers, who saw a need for such a school to give students the fundamentals of retailing. These retailers gave the school a grant of $75,000 to obtain a faculty and to get the school started.

However, college courses in retailing are not substitutes for practical experience. Therefore, in addition to classwork, retailing students work two days a week, on a part-time basis. They also work full-time during Thanksgiving and Christmas. At the present time, there are 100 students working in store service, as each student does this only three semesters of the four in retailing school.

As to plans for the future, the retailing school is planning an expansion of the graduate program, and development of research work (such as job analysis and job evaluation).

The question might arise: Are there enough jobs for those who desire to go into retailing? The answer is an emphatic Yes. Retailing employs the third largest group of people in the country — 7,500,000 — and ten percent of these are executives. The retailing school trains its students so that they will be able to make rapid progress toward one of these executive careers.

The retailing school is under the guidance of Dr. Wenzil K. Dolva, who came to us in 1946 from the University of Denver where he was head of the University College program. Previous to that, he had been Dean of the Pace Institute Business College. He is assisted by an executive committee of six men, and an advisory committee of thirty men, all of whom are outstanding retailers in this area.

Dental School

4559 Scott Avenue houses a proportionately small, but very important and famous division of our university—the Washington University School of Dentistry.

The building itself is well equipped with laboratories, classrooms, one of the best dental libraries in the United States, recreational rooms, and of course several rooms which comprise the dental clinic. In the clinic, which is frequented by St. Louisans, each junior and senior in the school has his own unit. This unit consists of a dental chair and two cabinets furnished by the school and countless numbers of instruments owned by the student. Here the would-be dentist works as if he were in his own private office. He has regular patients whose cases he diagnoses and treats under the supervision of a faculty member. The juniors and seniors also have their own laboratory where they practice making dentures. As for the freshmen and sophomores, they too have a laboratory, but their work is mainly that of study and not practice.

Because the dental school is physically detached from the main campus of Washington University, the dental students have formed their own clubs and activities. There are four dental fraternities — three social (Delta Sigma Delta, Xi Psi Phi, and Alpha Omega) and one honorary (Omicron Kappa Upsilon). Then too, there are other organizations. For example, a large percentage of the students are from Arkansas and have formed a club of that name. Overseeing all activities is the Dental School's student council, which is entirely separate from that of the main campus.

Thar's gold in them thar cavities.

Dean Otto W. Brandhorst

Washington University School of Dentistry

The School of Dentistry came into existence in 1866 as the Missouri Dental College. In 1892 it became a department of Washington University with the name Washington University Dental Department, and in 1928 the name was changed to the present day Washington University School of Dentistry. The school is a member of the American Association of Dental Schools and has been approved by the Council of Dental Education of the American Dental Association. For the past four years the school has been under the guidance of Dean Otto William Brandhorst.

Dean Lawrence E. Stout

The School of Engineering

When Deans Stout and Fisher moved into their offices in the new Sever Institute, the School of Engineering proudly opened its eighty-second year. The modern classrooms and laboratories in Sever are conducive to study; and the new addition, together with Cupples I and II, comprise a well-rounded plant for the twelve hundred "Engine" students. Sever Institute was established in 1948 and completed in time for the opening of the Fall Term, 1949. Under the Graduate Division of Washington University's School of Engineering, the Institute thus provides a fifth, sixth, and seventh year of graduate study.

Since 1905, when the school was established, the Engineers have compiled an outstanding record in extra-curricular as well as scholastic activities. Every year the school holds an Engineers' Day, when each department, together with its organizations, competes to best display the special work of its own branch of the science. Competition is intense and the exhibits are invariably ingenious and entertaining. In connection with Engineers' Day, the students give an all-school dance known as the Engineers' Masque, at which they crown a Queen and her Court. This ball is considered so important that Saint Patrick, the patron saint of engineers, mysteriously appears to crown Her Majesty.

Although the students complain over the twenty or more hours each is compelled to carry, many of them are so absorbed in their problems that they continue with slide rule manipulations even while walking from class to class. Even with their extra work, the Engineers find time to develop an intense pride in their Deans, Departments, and Science.

*Bixby Hall
the Saint Louis School of Fine Arts*

School of Fine Arts

One of the oldest schools of Washington University, occupying one of Washington U.'s newer buildings — that's the School of Fine Arts. The School, celebrating its seventy-first birthday this year, is now under the guidance of Dean Kenneth Hudson.

Its founding, 1879, was unusually significant, for connected with the Art School was an art gallery which in later years became a civic institution. Even today, many items in the permanent display of the City Art Museum are the property of Washington University. Halsey C. Ives, director of the school of Fine Arts, was the first curator of the Museum.

Bixby Hall was presented to the Art School in 1926 by William K. Bixby, a prominent businessman. The School was originally housed in downtown St. Louis where the University was then located. From there it was moved after the World's Fair to the British Dominions Exhibit Building on the present campus. Some of the interior decorations from the latter building are now in use in Bixby Hall.

Law School

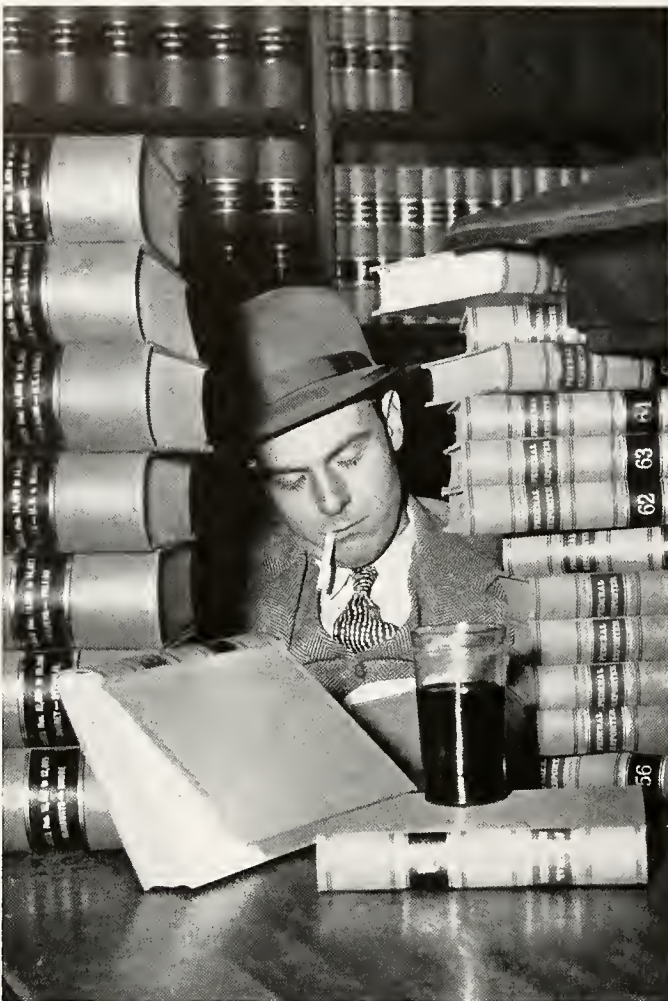

Founded in 1867 by Henry Hitchcock, the eighty-two year old Law School at Washington University is the oldest school of its kind in continuous operation west of the Mississippi. A charter member in the Association of American Law Schools, it still retains a high position.

The three-year Graduate School now has an enrollment of nearly two hundred and fifty students. As a result of this enlarged student body, several new members have been added to the faculty.

For many years, the Washington University Law School has published a "Law Quarterly." Students and members contribute to this "Quarterly" which is under the direction of a board of editors composed of students.

In order to give practice to the law students, "moot" courts are held during their first year. It has been the custom in recent years for St. Louis judges to turn over their courts to the graduating students, in order that the students may conduct cases, while members of the American Bar Association observe.

Members of the Law School attribute its popularity to the excellent ability of the faculty and to the close student-faculty cooperation.

Liberal Arts College

Starting the college year with a new freshman guidance plan, the Liberal Arts Department is enlarging its program. This plan, headed by Professor George D. Stout, includes guidance for students who have irregularities in their records or entrance examinations. It is being combined with the already established Reading Clinic and Counseling Program for students who have study problems, and it functions to give more individual help to the students. Through the college, a vocational guidance test is also provided free of charge to freshman. Other students may have opportunity to take the test at a fee of $10.00.

A new dean, Thomas S. Hall, heads the Liberal Arts Department assisted by Deans Dana O. Jensen and Albert E. Goldstein. Seven new department heads also have been appointed. They are, Phillip DeLacy, Classics; Guy A. Cardwell, English; Erich Hofacker, German; Lewis Hahn, Philosophy; Marion E. Bunch, Psychology; Herbert Dieckmann, Romance Languages; and Stuart A.

The official enrollment in the Liberal Arts School is 2,138 students who are preparing for a Bachelor of Arts degree or for other specialized fields. The Medical School

The Washington University Medical School was established in 1899 when Pope's College combined with McDowell's College. Since then it has become one of the leading medical institutions of the country and graduates approximately ninety doctors each year.

Dean Robert A. Moore

The Medical unit at Washington University, including the Nurses' Residence, Barnes Hospital, the Mallinckrodt Institute of Radiology, McMillan Hospital, and the Medical School proper.

Under the instruction and guidance of a number of the most able men and women in medicine today, some of whom are Nobel Prize winners, about three hundred and sixty medical students are studying to be doctors. As of today there are approximately three thousand living doctors who have received their degrees from this institution. Those who graduate each year add to the established reputation of the past.

The Medical School

Plans are being made for the future expansion of the Washington University Medical School. At the present time a six-story cancer research building is being built between the north and south buildings of the School, which is located at Euclid and Kingshighway. The plans are being completed for the David P. Wohl Memorial Hospital which will enlarge the well known Barnes Hospital. A student center is a dream of the future which will become a reality when sufficient funds for its completion have been raised. This center would provide housing, eating, and recreational facilities for married and unmarried students alike.

The future of the Medical School is bright, and as a part of Washington University it has brought much fame to an already great institution.

Blewett School of Music

The Washington University School of Music, in its three years of existence, has grown to an enrollment of 116; there have been 356 students altogether in the first three years. Since its organization, the Music School has added a new scholastic year of study annually. That is, the courses on the Junior level were the highest offered this year; next year, a full four-year course, from the Freshman year through the Senior year, will be offered. Thus, in 1951, it will be possible for the students to graduate with an A.B. degree with a major in music. After 1951, the School will be able to take graduate students, just as any other department.

Disc Jockeying 101.

The courses in the Music School are of two types: theory courses, which present the actual mechanics of music to the student, and courses in the history of music.

Under the guidance of the Music School is the band, the orchestra (both directed by Mr. Leonard Berkowitz), the chorus (under the direction of Mr. Richmond McCleur), and the chamber music programs. In addition, there is the concert program, which sponsors performances by professional musicians for the general public.

The Music School is headed by Dr. Frank L. Harrison, who came to Washington after serving as Professor of Music at Queens University for ten years, followed by a year's fellowship at Yale in composition. Before his appointment to Washington, he served as head of the Department of Music at Colgate University. He has received wide recognition as a composer, an organist, and as a concert pianist.

The Music School has endeavored to teach appreciation of music to the general student, to give him a broader background, rather than to stress the professional aspects of the subject. Of course, this general study will provide a good background for a student with the desire and ability for the professional side of music.

Under the able guidance of Miss Martha Moon, the Social Director, a broad social program is planned including formal proms, a Fall Mixer, a Halloween party and a May Dance. Also included is an annual excursion on the Admiral and informal parties designed for the students to get to know each other and the faculty.

The students live in the Nurse's Residence at 416 South Kingshighway. It includes dormitory rooms and a lounge, the Rose Room and a recreation room where the students can dance and entertain their guests.

School of Nursing

The Washington University School of Nursing, founded forty-four years ago and affiliated with the Barnes Hospital Group, has increased its enrollment from five student nurses in 1905 to two hundred and forty-five this year. These future nurses participate in a closely integrated program of academic and clinical work.

Under the Directorship of Miss Louise Knapp, the students follow courses in chemistry, microbiology, pharmacology, anatomy and physiology in addition to courses in bed-making, bath-giving and professional ethics.

During the three year course, black stockings are worn for the first five months. The climax of this pre-clinical period is the

Among the many active organizations at the Nursing School is the Student Council. The officers are elected from the student body and there are representatives from each class. It acts as a governing body and a disciplinary committee and plans programs for monthly meetings.

The student nurses take an active part in school events; they won honorable mention for their 1949 Homecoming float and entered several queen candidates in the all-school elections.

The School of Nursing is under the supervision and control of the School of Medicine, through an Administrative Board appointed by the Chancellor. This insures the maintenance of the highest possible professional and educational standards. Students are admitted to the School of Nursing as candidates for the diploma of Graduate Nurse, for the Degree of Bachelor of Science in Nursing and the diploma of Graduate Nurse or as special students.

Occupational Therapy

Although the department of Occupational Therapy is relatively new to Washington University, it is one of the six oldest schools of its kind in the United States and the first such training center west of the Mississippi. The School was started in 1918 and was affiliated with Washington U. Medical School in 1946.

The curriculum of the "O.T." School is based on the philosophy of promoting the recovery of their patients. The classes include creative arts and manual activity, ceramics, weaving, printing, and woodwork. The occupational therapist teaches these skills to aid the patient gain complete mental and physical fitness. The skilled activities are, however, only one phase of the curriculum, which also includes theory, social sciences, psychology, medical school classes and occupational therapy application.

The occupational therapy course includes two years of pre-professional work, two years of professional work and ten months of clinical training. The therapist, upon graduation, is trained in five types of work — orthopedic, psychiatric, tubercular, children's and general medicine. Most specialization is done on the job.

The white blouse and green jumper with the red and green O.T. emblem is not the only attire of the school's students. This uniform is exchanged quite frequently for more suitable social garments. For the different holidays the girls paint and decorate windows of many hospitals throughout the city. A beautiful pine-paneled student recreation room is the scene of monthly dinner meetings which feature guest speakers outstanding in the medical field.

The way I see it . . .
Now these Med students . . .
Rip 'em up, tear 'em up . . .

They also press pants on Saturday.

Dr. Livingston, I presume.

The Washington University Student Occupational Therapy Association is the governing body of the school. It has a mediation board that meets weekly for judging tardiness and other offenses; it controls the school storeroom and library; and it arranges social affairs such as the "Ice Breakers," Christmas parties and teas. An innovation in the "O.T." social affairs is an open house for graduating high school seniors, social workers, and vocational directors to acquaint them with the opportunities of this field. The W.U.S.O.T.A., under the leadership of Betty Steirger, also governs the class attendance, problems and work of the girls. A new policy of sponsoring incoming students was also introduced this year. A senior student adopted a new junior, helped her get acquainted with the other girls in the green jumpers and white blouses and introduced her to the well-rounded life in the "O.T." School.

Miss Erna Rozmarynowski, Director

George Warren Brown School of Social Work

School of Social Work

Last year Washington University's School of Social Work graduated 67 persons with the professional degree of Master of Social Work. Its enrollment has increased 40 per cent in the last two years.

The student body is diversified, representing thirty states and several foreign countries. However, their unity is displayed by strong student-faculty cooperation. Every Thursday the faculty, graduates, and undergraduates meet for lunch in the lounge at Brown Hall, and every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon they attend coffee hour in the lounge.

Graduate social work education has been offered at Washington University ever since 1925, when community demand was met by establishment of an approved curriculum. Brown Hall, where the school is housed, and most of the school's endowment came through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. George Warren Brown. Two men, first Frank J. Bruno and now Benjamin E. Youngdahl, have headed the school since its beginning 25 years ago.

Dean Youngdahl is a past president of the American Association of Schools of Social Work and a member of the Board of Directors of the Child Welfare League of America. During World War II Mr. Youngdahl was on the staff of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration and at the present time is consultant for the army's program of training psychiatric social workers and a member of the planning group for the mid-century White House Conference on children and youth.

Dean Benjamin E. Youngdahl

The School offers a two year graduate professional curriculum leading to the professional degree, Master of Social Work. A junior curriculum for undergraduates prepares for a few social agency jobs and future study on the graduate level.

Don't you get it?

Night View

Dean Willis H. Reals

6,363 students are enrolled in the evening, late afternoon, and Saturday morning classes. In its evening program, the students may earn either a Bachelor of Science in Natural Science or a Bachelor of Science in Social Science. All requirements for these degrees may now be met in evening classes. The evening program offers a wide and varied selection of courses including the regular college curriculum as well as cultural, recreational, and technical subjects.

It is the goal of University College to provide a program of education which will enable adults in all walks of life to continue to learn after their formal period of schooling. One of the areas in which University College provides service to students and the community, is through its Counseling Service of which hundreds of students have availed themselves.

University College

In May, 1949, University College completed its fortieth year of activities at Washington University. This school was created in 1909 and offered a program of Saturday morning classes. In 1915 the Division was expanded to include evening courses, and was then called the Division of University Extension. In 1931, its title was changed to University College when the School was authorized to grant the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education. During the first few years following World War II, University College was responsible for providing educational opportunities for veterans. This tremendous task was handled through the functioning of the Special Veteran's Program. In the spring of 1949, this special program was disbanded and the veterans enrolled in the school were absorbed in other Divisions of Washington University. Because of its expanding program, the Department was moved in the summer of 1948 to the South wing of Brookings to provide more room.

At the present time, 251 students are enrolled in the Day Program of University College. These students are working for a Bachelor of Science in Education and are preparing to teach in such areas as pre-school, elementary and secondary schools, and in special fields such as the education of handicapped children, nursing, librarianships, physical education.

Senior Class

"When I'm a senior . . .," words breathed by practically all college freshmen, changed this year to "Now that I'm a senior . . ." for the Class of 1950. College days are pleasant memories behind them now; even memories of final exams recall good times at Washington University.

It all started, for the majority of the graduated seniors, in 1946 with the Freshmen Mixer, continued the next year with Sophomore activities and last year with the Junior Prom as the big highlight. The climax came on June 6, the never-to-be-forgotten day, Commencement and the Senior Prom.

The class of 1950 did their full share for Washington U. They were editors of the campus publications, leaders of Student Senate, committee heads for Freshmen Orientation, Homecoming and numerous other campus committees, members of Mortar Board and Omicron Delta Kappa, senior honoraries, and in general, were "leaders of the campus."

The class elected Bob Strain as their president; Shirley Hendricks, vice-president; Marge Ritter, secretary; and Bill Kindorf, treasurer. The first class meeting was held on March 15 and preliminary plans were made for Commencement, the Prom and the Senior-Alumni Dinner.

Junior Class

There was plenty of work for the class of '51 to do this year at W. U. To start things off they elected Bill Tipton, president; Irby Cooper, vice-president; Sandy Spitzer, secretary; and Moir Brown, treasurer. The most pressing problem for the new officers and the class was to make arrangements for giving the annual Junior Prom. After several executive meetings and a general class meeting it was decided to give the Prom on April 21st. As a special added attraction the dance was held at the Chase Hotel with Eddy Howard and his famous orchestra. Having the dance at a hotel was a definite break with tradition, because in the past it had always been given at the Field House.

The next problem was helping the Student Senate and Hatchet run the election for the Hatchet Queen and maids, who were to be announced the night of the Prom. Everyone agreed that the voters made a wise selection when they chose Doris Andrews, Jean Gilmour, Sue Ittner, Shirley Pinckert and Betty Stake as candidates for Queen.

After the Prom the Juniors closed the books on another year and looked forward to next year when they would be old and respected seniors.

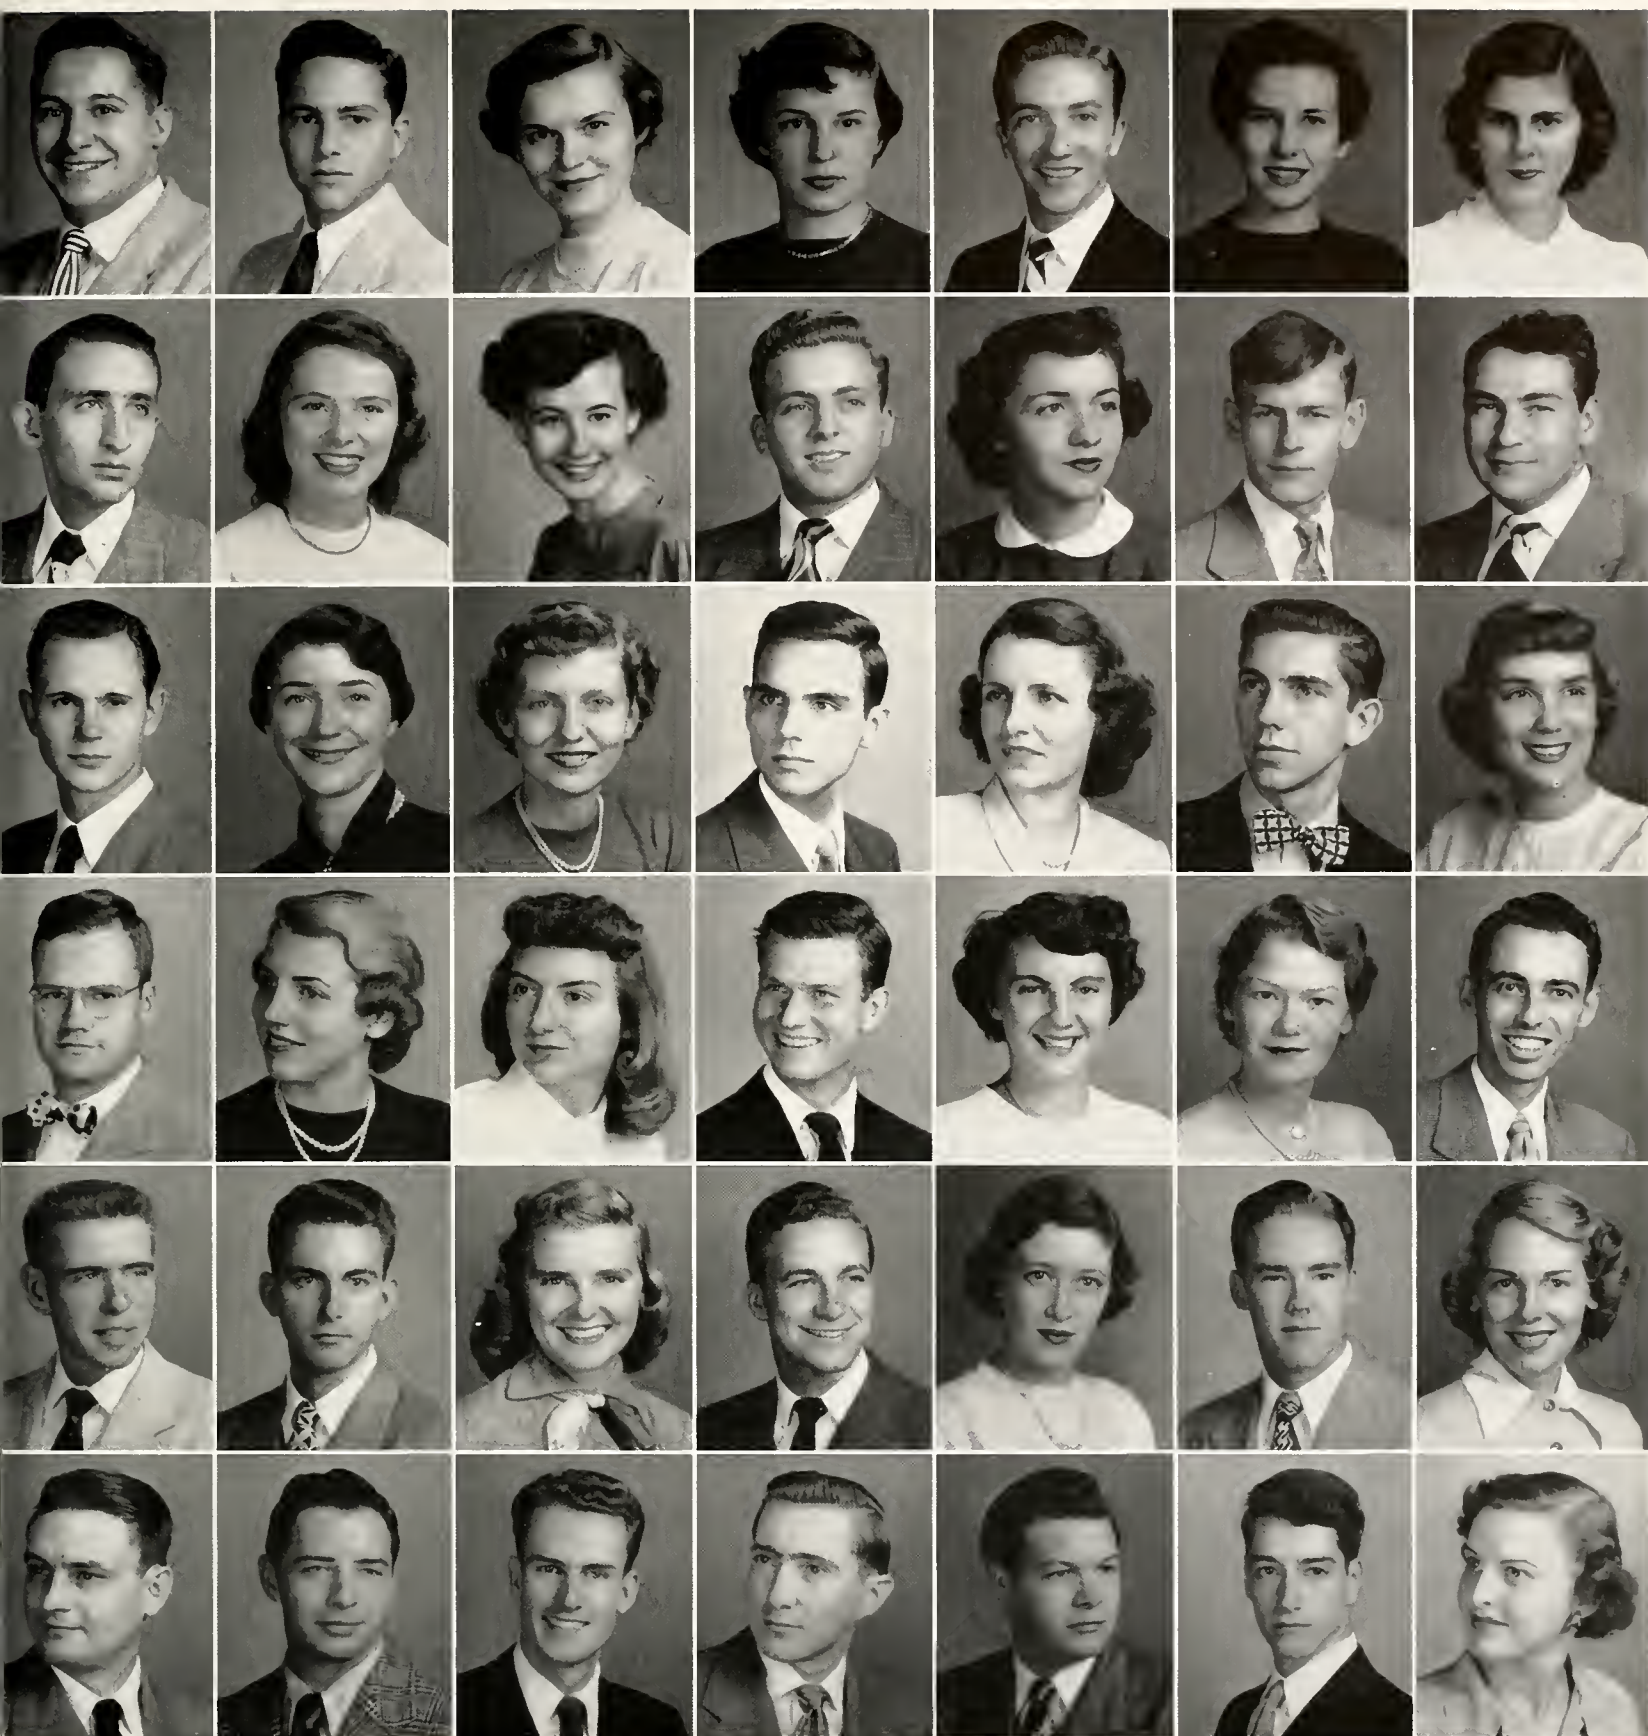

Round and round she goes . . .

. . . at the Thurtene Carnival.

Sophomore Class

The class of '52 began the year by helping those less fortunate students — the freshmen, through their orientation. Sophomores served on the camp committee and helped plan the program for Freshman Week, which was climaxed by the annual freshman-sophomore tug of war (which the freshmen won, incidentally). Then came class elections, and the officers chosen were: Bill Watkins, president; Bob Meyers, vice-president; Mary Ann Schaefer, secretary; Ileana Yawitz, treasurer.

The annual Sophomore dance, called "Fool's Frolic," was held this year on March 31, and climaxed Sophomore Week. The week was highlighted by the election of Mr. and Miss Sophomore, with the primary elections on Thursday and the five finalists presented to the Sophomores at a coffee hour on Friday at the Student Center. At the dance that night at the Starlight Roof of the Chase Hotel, Nadine Tiarks, DG, and Pete Mollman, Phi Delt, were crowned as Mr. and Miss Sophomore. The other finalists were: Joyce Alsmeyer, Mary Virginia Carroll, Janet McNish, Joanne Payne, Bob Barnes, Don Kaley, Don Kinball, and Mike Silva.

Additional plans for the year included a Sophomore Conference held at Trout Lodge April 28-30 in conjunction with a freshman conference at the same time. Susie Jaudes and George Allen were in charge of the program.

Sophomores . . .

Freshman Class

The Class of '53 started its extensive program of orientation with the Freshman camps for men and women in September, just before the fall semester began. The men's camp was held this year, as last, at Trout Lodge, Potosi, Missouri, while the first annual women's camp was held at Camp Wyman, Eureka, Missouri. After this camp program, the Freshmen came back to a week planned just for them, with beanieed students seen at a picnic at the Comptons, a mixer (crashed as usual by upper-classmen), and Freshmen Court.

After this brief indoctrination, weekly discussion groups, led by prominent wheels, gave the Freshmen information on all phases of campus life, university history, the various campus organizations, and a study program. At Homecoming when this orientation program was over, the Freshmen, who may not have felt any smarter, certainly felt relieved. Class elections came next, and the officers chosen were Bill Gartenberg, president; Rudy Dietrich, vice-president; Lawrence Brawer, secretary; and Dick Swibold, treasurer.

Swibold (Treas.), Gartenberg (Pres.), Brawer (Sec.), Dietrich (V.-Pres.).

The future of Washington University looks encouraging, due in part to the outstanding athletes from the freshman class. When the hundredth centennial comes along, Washington University can well be proud of its senior class.

Freshman Orientation

The Class of '53 was introduced to Washington University by Orientation Co-chairmen Shirley Hendricks and Herb Weitman. The freshmen met campus personalities, traditions, and activities during week-ends at orientation camps before they braved the registration desks where they received Freshmen Bibles and beanies and a battery of instructions.

Official welcome was extended to the freshmen on Orientation Day, when they assembled for a convocation in the Chapel, met with deans of their schools, enjoyed lunch at the Student Center and posed en masse for their picture. Later they and their parents attended a vesper service and reception in their honor and met Chancellor and Mrs. Compton.

Special tickets admitted the frosh to a picnic on the Chancellor's lawn, a mixer in the field house, or a call to court — where they stood trial for violation of revered rules and regulations. While campus cops stalked the walks with their commanding canes, weekly classes were conducted to acquaint the new students in the ways of W.U.

Freshman Orientation secretary was Virginia Lewis and treasurer was Dick Roloff. Betty Belknap served as mixer chairman, Betty Jo Berger as publicity chairman, Jean Claire Bentrup and Sandy Spitzer were in charge of the picnic, Bob Hetlage planned court sessions, Dick Roberts was in charge of the Freshman Bible, and Dick Mellow served as chairman of boys' camp.

The W.U. honoraries played a part in orienting the freshmen, too. Freshman Commission and Lock and Chain did their part by serving at the picnic and decorating for the mixer. The weekly orientation classes were conducted by Mortar Board and Omicron Delta Kappa.

Omicron Delta Kappa

O.D.Kologne

Election to ODK, national Honor Society for senior men, is based on outstanding leadership in the various activities of campus life. Beyond the requirement of high moral and spiritual leadership, candidates must have maintained a 1.5 grade average.

This year, as always, the chapter of O.D.K. at Washington University was busy in various phases of campus life. Joint meetings were held with Mortar Board to discuss student problems and to study improvements in student leadership and service. Work was done to organize a directory of all O.D.K. members and alumni in this region. The chapter furthered the establishment of a permanent Honor Code for WU students, and acted as censors for the Bear Skin Follies. One of the most important areas of concentration, however, was in the plans made to hold the national convention of Omicron Delta Kappa in St. Louis in 1951.

Washington University's chapter of ODK was established here in 1933. During its existence on campus the organization has merited great respect and admiration from the student body for its excellent work.

The highest recognition a woman student at Washington can receive is to be elected to Mortar Board, national honorary for senior women. Election to membership is based on leadership, scholarship, and service, the scholastic requirements being approximately a 1.7 accumulative average.

Mortar Board is not merely "Honorary" in the passive sense of the word; rather it is an organization whose members take active interest in campus affairs and work together to make worthy contributions to college life. This year Mortar Boarders were busy long before classes began, preparing calendars for sale at fall registration; this service was carried out the second semester too. Summer months were also busy for Mortar Board girls serving on a joint committee with ODK men to plan Freshman Orientation.

The social highlight of the fall season for the honorary was, of course, its annual Goldiggers' Ball, the only all-school backwards dance of the year. Held in the Field House on November 19, this year's Ball was based upon a new theme of the Far East. The ruling sovereign for the dance was the Campus Caliph.

Thurtene

Thurtene, the junior men's honorary fraternity, had its usual energetic year full of campus promotions and social affairs. The organization, now in its forty-fifth year on the WU campus, started its activities with the traditional initiation of the thirteen men deemed outstanding in the junior class.

Almost immediately, the new members turned their attention to the promotion of the Thurtene Carnival. Committees were appointed to take charge of the details of the carnival, and the work began many weeks before the actual starting date.

Due to space difficulties, the Carnival was forced to move from its traditional location at Big Bend and Millbrook and the midway was set up on the parking lot adjacent to the tennis courts. A large and enthusiastic crowd attended the two-night show, and the Carnival was again a highlight of the year's activities on campus.

Once the Carnival was out of the way, the men of the skull and crossbones were able to concentrate on the lighter side of life. Several fine social affairs were held for actives and alumni of the organization.

Loan me 13 cents!

Chimes

With gleeful "We told you so's," the members of CHIMES began selling the New Look, black-and-white covered directory on November first. This "Thirteen-Belle-Production" was the result of a sultry summer's intensified sleuthing after names of presidents, housemothers, and mascots. With the unqualified help of guardian angel Ritterskamp and business brains Voss, the book made an early appearance to defy the skeptics and delight the members.

After the sales had subsided and the chips had been counted, CHIMES settled down to matters domestic. First, a gala supper meeting had the girls wielding their soup-ladles, and, three days later, a cookie sale brought forth the choicest pastries from CHIMES kitchens. The sale, given as a benefit for the Christmas Bureau of the "Y," netted a total of one dollar per member in only three hours. By this time, the CHIMES ladies had become super saleswomen.

Along with singular accomplishments, 1949-50 was truly a year for CHIMES fun. To prove that life in an honorary is not drudgery, the "terrible thirteen" adopted a song entitled "We're Pinned To the Statue at the SAC," and set it to music. The only sad note in the year's activities, as a matter of fact, was the thought that the jaunty juniors were fast becoming sober seniors!

Lock and Chain

Lock and Chain, the men's sophomore honorary, is the oldest honorary society on campus. Its purpose is to foster school spirit by promoting all-school dances and other social activities.

The ranks of this honorary society are composed of one sophomore from each fraternity and two Independents. Members are selected on the basis of an outstanding record in the freshman year.

This year the campus scene was enlivened by two all-school dances presented by Lock and Chain. The annual Hay Hop took place in October, with the Butler University band and football team as guests. The second dance in April provided a sure-cure for spring fever. Another occurrence which caught the interest of the campus was the Battle of Titans, otherwise known as the Freshman-Sophomore tug-of-war. Lock and Chain revived the tug-of-war last year, and will annually award a trophy to the winning class. Other events in which the organization took part were the Dandelion Dig, Freshman Picnic, and Freshman Court.

Freshman Commission

Each spring nine to fifteen girls are elected to Freshman Commission, the Sophomore honorary at W. U., on the basis of their participation in activities and the potential leadership they have shown during their freshman year.

Helping with the orientation of Freshmen and assisting other organizations with their projects is the main purpose of "F. C." This year the members helped the Freshman Orientation committee by serving at the Freshman Picnic and decorating for the Freshman Mixer. They also assisted in selling Chimes and tickets for the Gold-diggers' Ball as well as serving as hostesses at Campus teas and sometimes taking care of the faculty children's nursery. In addition, the Commission sponsored a rummage sale and last fall followed tradition by giving a party for the retiring commission members at Marguerite Burns' home.

Officers for the organization are: Emma Lou Behrens, president; Susie Jaudes, vice-president; Marguerite Eng, secretary; and Lorna Marshall, treasurer.

Phi Eta Sigma

Phi Eta Sigma is a national men's honorary fraternity which came to the Washington University in 1932. The fraternity stresses high scholarship among freshmen men and also places importance on the development of character. To be eligible for membership, a student must have obtained at least a 2.5 scholastic average for his freshmen year.

Alpha Lambda Delta

Alpha Lambda Delta, national scholastic honorary for women, requires for membership a 2.5 grade average during the freshman year. This year's annual tea for freshmen women was held in December, and forty girls with a grade point average of 2.0 at mid-semester accepted the invitation.

Student Publications Bureau

Roaring into its seventeenth year on the campus the Student Publications Bureau set about the job of re-organizing, and re-vitalizing Washington University's official advertising agency under the direction of Charlie Hamilton. "Keep the publications out of the red," was the motto as Hamilton directed some of the Pub's new policies and money making ideas which brought about the Bearskin Follies and the creation of two new publications, bringing the total to eight.

Newell Baker steered the Student Life advertising for the year. Quirkey's assistant this year was Dick Donnelly who wheeled in and out ever so often and helped the mag pay off a nice chunk of its deficit. We wonder how it happened, but we are so happy we don't ask any questions.

Charlie Hamilton, Director

I'm sorry, but our ad quota has been filled since January 1st.

Last summer George Ewing pounded the hot pavements to hit a new record in advertising on the Cub and was able to show a record profit which will come in handy for the athletic department. Jack Muth wrote a manual for the office, and burned his fingers on practically everything in the Pub turning out one of the best Quad Show Programs ever.

Then Perry Voss rang the bell for Chimes, getting it out on time for the first time in years and breaking the ice on a new basketball program. Marilyn Probe blew in from Colorado just in time to become manager of the new Thyrsus Program, and in between queen elections pounded the sidewalks for S.P.B.

Student Publications Bureau

Pete Pitts struck up the band with the very successful Bearskin Follies . . . Marge Ritter and June Thursby helped set up a new public relations department with the assistance of Hazel Finley, and Ginny Rau cracked her whip over a crew of secretaries that were busy keeping pace with the ever growing Pub.

We sailed along under Charlie Hamilton's leadership headed for a record year, but he'll tell you it couldn't have been done without the splendid co-operation and work of all concerned.

What they won't do for a Pepsodent ad!

Hold the headlines, here's the results of the Spanish Club elections.
There's nobody left, we'll have to expose ourselves.

Student Life

With only brief pauses during the holidays and finals, Student Life editors and staff worked between classes, in the evening and small hours of the morning, and on Saturdays and Sundays, on the job of putting out the semi-weekly newspaper which for 72 years has been a leading element of campus life at Washington University.

Rewards for the labor have been highly gratifying. Student Life was named by the Missouri Collegiate Newspaper Association as the best college paper in Missouri, and received, for the fifth straight semester, All-American rating, the top position on the scale of the Associated Collegiate Press, which evaluates college newspapers throughout the nation.

Gratifying, also, has been the response to individual editorials and articles appearing in the paper during the past year. Some have been reported in the St. Louis dailies; others have been reprinted in their entirety, both locally and in other parts of the country. The national magazines have reprinted several items of feature interest which first appeared in Student Life. On at least one occasion, the WU newspaper broke news stories, which have grown into national interest.

George McCue, Editor-in-Chief

With a circulation of 5,000, Student Life remains one of the strongest forces in unifying the divergent elements of the large WU campus. Under the leadership of Editor-in-Chief George McCue, Managing Editor Irving Litvag, and City Editor Jim Deakin, SL continued its policy of providing complete coverage of campus news, as well as some aggressive editorial campaigns.

As usual, a highlight of the year was the annual Student Life banquet, held the last week in March. With the entire staff in attendance, as well as numerous editors and staff members from other years, the new editorial staff for 1950-51 was announced. A prominent newspaperman was the featured speaker.

Student Life sent delegates to the conventions of both collegiate newspapers to which it belongs — to the Associated Collegiate Press meeting in Detroit, and the Missouri College Newspaper Association convention at Columbia, Mo.

Quirky started this year like many of our students — "on probation." The grades were fine, but, as the unhappy buck said, "no doe" was the problem. Now, for the first time in its history, Quirk is in the black. The magazine has a new editor, a new policy, and largely a new staff, but is the same old Quirk. Squeezed between the faculty threats of "no print" and the students' threat of "no buy," the staff was often hard pressed for suitable material. So, rolling right down the middle of the road, Quirk has pleased both sides and sold enough copies each month to keep out of the red.

There's really nothing to publishing a magazine — no work, just play. The only qualifications for becoming a staff member are knowledge of all the popular card games

Cub

The Cub, Washington University's official Football Magazine, is published for all the home games to give publicity to the members of the squad and the coaches who bring football to us.

Selected by weekly balloting of the fans were Bud Wiederholt as the season's outstanding back and Clarence Turley as the outstanding lineman. The boys were presented with gold rings mounted with the WU crest at the football banquet.

Directing the persuasive ad-salesmen was George Ewing, Business Manager, who also handled other business arrangements for the publication. George's chief lieutenants were John Muth, who ably managed the sales at the games, and Tom Meyer, publicity director. Among the hardworking ad salesmen were Newell Baker, Jere French, Carol Robertson, and Perry Voss. The efforts of the business staff were not in vain as the Cub set new records in advertising and in net profit. Acclaimed by all for her outstanding work was the Cub's cartoonist, Gloria Glomski. Gloria, with the help of Paul Cretien, supplied the pages of Cub with cartoons that were unmatched in artistic skill and cleverness. Irby Cooper, editor, was able to call upon such talent as Larry Brawer, Gene Cerulo, Irv Litvag, Mike Levin, Irv Maizlish, Bill Miller, Dave Rohde and Stanley Wender to produce the feature stories that went into Cub. An efficient handler of ever-important secretarial work was Bernice Schramm, while the equally important photography job was shared by Herb Weitman and Roy Dankman.

An innovation in the '49 Cub was a weekly column, "A Variety of Retrospection," which featured the opinions of coaches, players, sports writers, faculty members, students and alumni. These various sources were directly quoted as to what they thought of the Bear game of the past week, thus giving Cub readers a picture of Bruin play from all possible angles.

Results of a successful season.

Two Senate sponsored activities — Freshman Orientation and Homecoming.

Student Senate, under the leadership of Co-Chairmen Betty Tracy and Paul Corning, has had a full agenda this year. Senators were kept busy making decisions on everything from joining the National Student Association to starting a tutoring service on campus.

The Senators, representing schools and classes as well as sororities, fraternities and the Independent Council, sponsored such all-school functions as the Football Banquet and an Athletic Trip. The particularly successful Homecoming celebration and Freshman Orientation Program were examples of Senate at its best.

Student Senate, representing students all over the campus, is one means whereby the administration and faculty may learn students' viewpoints. One method of representing the students' interests is in the various joint student faculty boards such as the Board of Student Finances, which apportions money for student organizations. Other similar boards include the newly-formed Board of Student Affairs, the University Athletic Committee, the University Assembly Committee, and the University Disciplinary Committee. These boards and committees make policies and other decisions in various fields.

Presentation of Senate football awards.

Student Senate

Special services instituted by Senate this year include student tutoring, publicity regulations for the whole school and further development of the teaching evaluation plan. Elections, various student problems such as the Health Service, and a Student Union Committee working for a Union Building are also under the jurisdiction of the Senate.

The National Student Association did its part in representing the students of WU — both locally and nationally. Some projects sponsored by NSA were petitioning for a Public Service pass for college students and sponsoring a Human Relations Conference. NSA also gave the Senators an opportunity to exchange ideas with other colleges on the services and methods of student governments and the activities of other student organizations and groups on the various campuses.

The year, indeed, was a busy one for the sixty Senators and the Executive Board, which included Harriet Wunderlich, Virginia Lewis, Dick Roloff, and Art Andrew, in addition to Co-Chairmen Tracy and Corning.

The primary purpose of the American Society of Civil Engineers is the development of its members, both scholastically and professionally, in the field of Civil Engineering. To this end the group organizes social events and meetings throughout the year. It also works in cooperation with the St. Louis Section of the A. S. C. E. and has served as host to that body on several occasions. The past year has been one of the most successful in the history of the Chapter, with its membership reaching a new high of over one hundred members.

The Washington University student chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers was organized in 1932. All regularly enrolled undergraduate students of Chemical Engineering are eligible for membership. The objects of this chapter are (1) to maintain the high standards of Chemical Engineering, (2) to foster a clearer understanding of the possibilities and obligations of Chemical Engineering as a profession; (3) to promote a spirit of fellowship among its members.

The AIEE is the electrical engineers' professional society. The year's program consists of regular monthly meetings with speakers on such subjects as television, aircraft armaments, and power systems. In addition, the program is rounded out by social affairs, participation in Engineers' Day, field trips, and state and regional activities. The AIEE is now arranging to form a joint student branch with the Institute of Radio Engineers.

The Walter E. McCourt Student Chapter of A.I.M.E. at Washington University is composed of both geologists and geological engineers. During the past year, activities of this group have consisted of field trips to mines in the Missouri lead-zinc mining area; technical films such as "The Birth of an Oil Field" by the Shell Oil Corporation; and informative lectures by various members of the university faculty and visiting industrial geologists.

Alpha Chi Sigma

Alpha Chi Sigma, professional chemical fraternity, is composed of student and professional branches. The collegiate chapter has some social events of its own and many in conjunction with the professional group. On December 10, twenty new initiates found reward for their perseverance as pledges in the Town Hall initiation banquet featuring steaks and tall stories by the brothers old and new. The fall and spring rush parties, a semester-starting dance in February, and the annual post-graduation dinner-dance rounded out the year's social events.

Tau Beta Pi

Tau Beta Pi is considered by most engineers to be the top honorary in their field. Strictly an engineering honor society, it selects its members from those students who rank in the upper eighth of their junior class or upper fifth of their senior class. Beginning the fall semester with an active membership of twenty-four men, the chapter has since been augmented by the initiation of eighteen qualifying engineers.

The functions of AIE during the year consisted of sponsoring an exhibit for Engineer's Day, developing relations between the members and local industrial plants, organizing an alumni group for the purpose of establishing a senior chapter in St. Louis, and some very enjoyable social affairs. One of the group's newest activities is questioning industrialists as to the improvements in curriculum which they feel would be advantageous to graduates in their later work.

The student section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers offers competition to other engineers on Engineers' Day; it sponsors several picnics and dances; and its annual "Steam Man's Strut" is steadily growing into an engineering tradition. The student section continues to grow in members; mechanical engineers are proud to wear the small shamrock pin that represents ASME.

Engineer's Council

The Engineer's Council is the representative body for the seven departmental student engineering societies and the various class levels of the Engine School. It co-ordinates the activities of all engineers in presenting their spectacular exhibits during Engineer's Week. It sponsors the Engineers' Dance and, with the help of St. Pat, presents the Spring Masque, with the presentation of the Engineer's Queen.

Pi Tau Sigma

Pi Tau Sigma, national Mechanical Engineering honorary fraternity, was established at WU in 1949. The primary purpose of this organization is to provide a reward for those men who have distinguished themselves by their accomplishments in this field and to provide an incentive for others to do likewise. The first semester was devoted to enlarging the membership and the second to the performance of service projects required by the by-laws of the fraternity.

The Architectural Society opened the season with a SPLASH! Beanied and pigtailed freshmen, with the assistance of the most worthy high water commissioners, were given a week of swimming lessons followed by a formal initiation into the order of the Sacred Moose. "Roll Over Rollins" was our slogan for the Homecoming float, and not only did our team roll over Rollins, but our float rolled over all other independent organizations' floats as we came up with the trophy.

Architectural Society

The American Society of Architectural Engineers is the newest engineering society on campus. Upon an invitation last fall to join the newly formed national society, Kaabah was dissolved and ASAE came to Washington University. ASAE, which is open to all students in Architectural Engineering, provides an opportunity for social and educational advancement by having lectures and films on subjects related to the "architectural branch of engineering" given by men prominent in their field.

The annual Christmas Dinner given by Miss Rose climaxed the Christmas activities.

Eta Chapter of Eta Mu Pi, national honorary retailing fraternity founded to promote the science of ethics in retailing, was founded at Washington University in June, 1946. Those elected to wear the gold key of Eta Mu Pi must have 25 units in retailing, maintaining a 2.3 average in the latter courses and a "B" average in all other subjects. Usually seniors or graduate students are elected to the honorary.

The Washington University Sailing Club was founded last fall and had a very successful year under the Commodoreship of Doug Kellerman. The fleet was started in December with the purchase of our first dinghy, the Thread Bear. Activities included sailing every week, weather permitting, at Alton Lake, instruction in sailing, and the passing of tests. In addition, the social schedule of the Sailing Club was crowded with parties.

Sailing Club

In October, 1948, a small group of students interested in bowling gathered together and formed the WU Bowling League. Founded on the principles of good sportsmanship and fellowship, the club has grown each semester, providing more students with the opportunity of bowling in a competitive league. Six teams participated in the first season and in the spring the league was increased to eight five-man teams.

Red Cross

The Washington University chapter of the American Red Cross was formed May 18, 1943, in response to a direct need for volunteer war workers. The first organizational meeting was held a week later when officers and chairmen of the various operational groups were chosen. The following fall Dean Adele Starbird was selected faculty advisor for the group. Since that time the chapter has continued to function and meet the needs of war and post-war times.

Throughout the six years of its existence on campus, the Red Cross unit has sponsored some seven fields of activity: Canteen Work and Community Service, Production, Motor Corps, Fund Raising, First Aid and Water Safety, Nutrition and assistance to the Junior Red Cross.

This year the Motor Corps unit has been especially active and Washington U. Chapter has gained high praises from the St. Louis chapter of the Red Cross for its fine cooperation and assistance in emergencies.

A new phase of Community Service was added this year: that of providing entertainment to hospitalized servicemen at Scott Field. These and many other services rendered keep the chapter busy throughout the school year.

A prize-winning room in McMillan.

McMillan Hall is more than a dormitory to provide undergraduate women with two meals and a broom closet. It's the prune juice and poached eggs for breakfast and the fried celery and asparagus for dinner. It's the Halloween party featuring Mrs. Eames dressed as a witch, the Valentine dinner with "Dixie" and "Yankee Doodle" played on the accordion, and the senior dinner dance under the stars. It's the coke machine used after 10:30 and the milk machine from which two can get drinks as cheaply as one. It's the man who comes to fix the Bendix every Saturday afternoon and the plumbers and carpenters who add a little spice to life by walking in unannounced. It's the 1:30 deadlines and the watchman's friendly greeting at 1:35. It's phone duty, lost permissions, and the joy of being a second semester senior with unlimited 12:30's. It's the comfortable chairs in the lounge which one must not lean back in and the Christmas mistletoe in the front hall where it is of absolutely no use. It's food and fire drills, parties and penalties — and it's home to 150 WU women.

Associated Junior Retailers

In 1945 the Associated Junior Retailers was organized with the Department of Retailing to promote both social and academic activities for retailing students. The past five years have proved highly successful. The organization is becoming stronger and both membership and social activities continue to grow. Annual events included the tea in honor of new students, academic awards to outstanding students by the Associated Retailers of St. Louis, the hayride, and the annual dinner dance. This was the first year the retailers were represented in the Homecoming Parade and at Thurtene Carnival. At the Christmas dinner a candidate was elected for the annual student trip to the National Retail Dry Goods Convention in New York City.

To encourage fellowship among students interested in the arts is the aim of the Art Students' Association. Sincere cooperation enables the students to become better acquainted by working together on such projects as the Bohemian Brawl; the Beaux Arts Ball, main social events of the year; a raffle of faculty work for the purpose of raising a scholarship fund; and exhibitions of student work.

Several other activities might be mentioned such as the freshman mixer, charity projects, and the cup-winning Thurtene Carnival booth.

Fun as well as hard work constitutes the spirit of organization which largely accounts for the group's continued success.

Campus Y

The twenty-seven program activity groups in the Campus Y are open to any and all interested students. Most stimulating, probably, are the half dozen different discussion series, ranging from the active Freshman program to the Graduate Club. Many of these meetings take place in faculty homes and provide an outstanding opportunity to get to know members of the faculty better as well as to have a good free-for-all discussion.

Thursday Noon Forums present controversial issues — and a cost lunch — each week. Students from abroad exchange views and get better acquainted with students from this country in weekly evening meetings in various homes. The Graduate Club brings together about twenty-five students from various departments, helping overcome the necessary specialization of graduate study.

In these and other similar groups, discussions range widely and deeply and out of them come plans for campus action, new friends and a deeper understanding of what education is all about.

For the more actively minded, there are such things as the big International Bazaar with booths from many lands; monthly parties; weekly Cosmopolitan Club teas; and the popular weekend outings. Some prefer to work on the weekly Cub Calendar. Others help plan series on Philosophy of Life, on Love and Marriage, on How to Choose a Vocation or a chapel meeting for some outstanding campus visitor. And for some, their most vivid memories are of the annual regional conferences of the Rocky Mountain Region at Estes Park and other inter-collegiate conferences.

The Y is based on the belief that students learn and grow by participating in purposeful groups doing their own planning. Lasting friendships, growing leadership ability and deepened insights are direct results of such experiences. In all these ways, students find maturity intellectually, socially, religiously.

Quantitatively speaking, over 800 students took part in these various activities last year and made up a representative cross-section of the campus community. The total attendance at Y program events was 17,990 in 1949! An invitation is not needed! All are welcome to any of these meetings and to take part in any program of interest.

What We Are . . .

Now in its third year of operation, the temporary Student Union is the answer to a student demand for a social gathering place. The purpose of Student Center is to fulfill the needs for extra-curricular social, recreational, and cultural activities on the campus.

What We Do . . .

The facilities of Student Center represent a well-balanced program of services and activities. The Snack Bar provides refreshments twelve hours a day. The Gallery is convenient for eating, drinking, and card-playing. The Carousel Room, Den, and Reading Room are available for meetings, studying, and recreation. The Patio is open during warm weather for loafing and sunning. The Lounge completes the set-up with facilities for relaxing and dancing.

In addition, student committees present a number of planned activities. The Entertainment Division features movies — both full-length and education — and Club Cabaret, the campus night club. The Social Division sponsored Coffee Hours, Open Houses, Music Hours, bridge and chess. Informal and square dances are staged by the Dance Division. The Service Projects Division secures art displays, arranges decorations, and promotes the All-School Picnic. The Publicity and Public Relations Divisions advertise all Student Center events as well as maintaining good relations between Student Center and the various campus organizations.

How We Do It . . .

Miss Jane Sackett, the director of the Student Center, is responsible for budgets, maintenance, personnel, and purchasing. The Student Center Advisory Board, consisting of students, faculty, and alumni, assists Miss Sackett in the operation of the Center. The Board also determines Student Center policy and passes approval upon the activity programs planned and executed by the student committees. Stan Forrest, chairman of the Board, co-ordinates all the Student Center services and activities.

We Realize . . .

That the facilities available at the Student Center are inadequate to meet the needs of Washington University. We hope that this condition will be alleviated in the near future by the replacement of the Center with a permanent Union Building.

It all pans out.

Thyrus

Washington University's dramatic club, THYRSUS, is one of the oldest organizations of its kind west of the Mississippi. Its membership is open to all Washington students who are interested in the Dramatic Arts. Membership is attained by a system of points which are accredited according to the amount of work in various fields of production and interest shown by candidates for membership.

THYRSUS is headed by Professor William G. B. Carson, noted theatre historian, and its directorial staff is composed of Professors T. Nelson Magill and Wayne W. Arnold.

It is the aim of the organization to work toward establishing in the future a school of drama at the university by the presentation of good plays and by diligent work toward this goal.

THYRSUS had a terrific 1949-50 season. Ambition ran riot in the unusual productions. School work at times was extra-curricular. The group undertook four productions, the first three of these directed by Professor Magill. "The Traitor" held out in Brown Hall for four nights until he was apprehended by Naval Intelligence and the secret of the Atom Bomb was rescued from the hands of Red spies. James Jakle, Wiley Hance, John Ribbing, and Nancy Young, all THYRSUS veterans, participated in the presentation of this drama.

Betty Moore, as the eternal other woman, ruled supreme over audiences at Brown in the role of Sabina in the "Skin of Our Teeth," Thornton Wilder's vivid comment on the history of man. Her performance was of outstanding merit, sharply edged with professional skill.

Making up!
Students relaxing in the Quad Shop.
Let's face it!

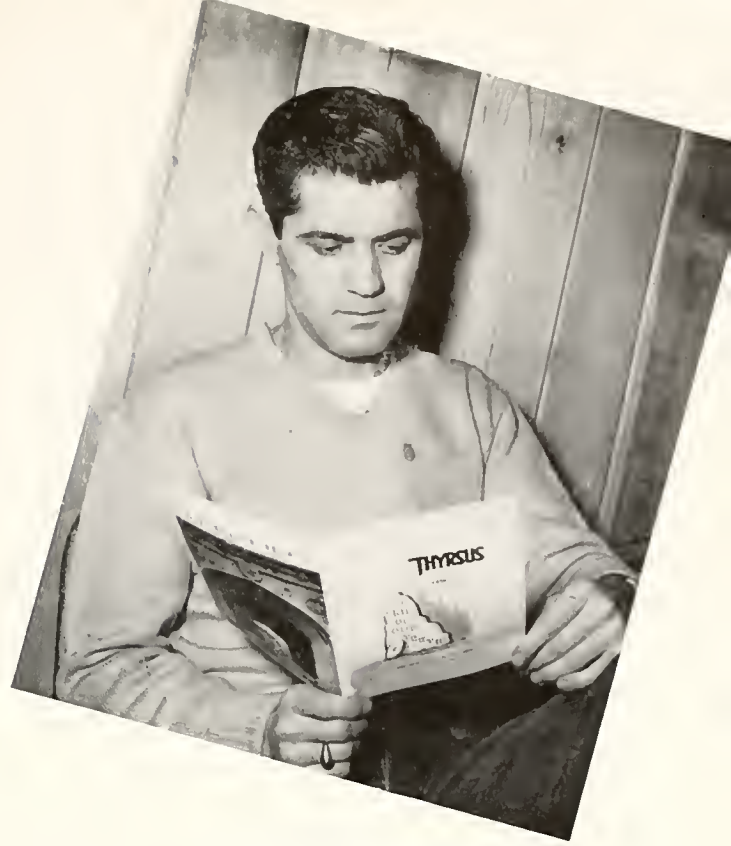

Dramatic Club

"Cyrano de Bergerac" was chosen as the third production. This was quite an undertaking, considering the shoe-box size of Brown stage, and the less than adequate facilities offered by the auditorium. Thyrsus members are ambitious and resourceful and nothing is too difficult.

The cast, headed by James Jakle, was one of the largest ever assembled in a Thyrsus production. John Ribbing, Wiley Hance, Mary Jane Kennedy, Don Howard, Norman London, and Ted Stoffler were outstanding in their roles, and the excellent performance was brightened by rich costumes and dramatic sets. Washington U. loudly proclaimed "Cyrano" the best of the year, and the play's warm reception was rewarding to all who had worked so hard for its success.

The season closed with the traditional and original THYRSUS Revue, satirizing college life. This production was under the direction of Professor Arnold.

W. R. A.

W.R.A. activities officially commenced with a rally held early in the school year for all women students. About one hundred persons attended and indicated the sports in which they wanted to participate. From this information, the managers were able to begin work on their activities for the year — and work they did!

Several new policies have been adopted, which include the awarding of a large rotating trophy for the organization having the greatest number of points gained from intra-mural competition. Smaller cups were given to the individual winning group for each activity. A Co-Recreation Club and a W Club have also been promoted by members of the W.R.A. board.

Along with its established sports program, W.R.A. also held its all school picnic in the spring and its annual banquet at the Student Center.

All women students are members of A.W.S. and take part in the election of officers and representatives. The Women's Council, the governing body of A.W.S., is made up of the officers and representatives of the various schools and organizations. Dean Starbird is the faculty adviser.

A new feature of Freshman Orientation Week, this year, was the Freshman Camp for Women. Camp counselors were members of the Women's Council and Orientation Committee, headed by Shirley Hendricks and Herb Weitman. Women's week, an innovation on the W.U. campus, was an idea brought back from the I.A.W.S. convention at the University of New Mexico, by Gerri Woodworth, president. The highly successful week was supervised by Arden Mueller. Another innovation this year was the A.W.S. Book Scholarship. Members of the A.W.S. board and committees helped, through various money-making schemes, to earn enough money to award this scholarship to an undergraduate student who showed outstanding ability in scholarship and also in student government.

A. W. S.

The Association of Women Students is one of the oldest organizations on the Washington University campus. Formerly known as the Women's Self-Government Association, A.W.S. is an active member of the Intercollegiate Association of Women Students.

The officers of A.W.S. are: Gerri Woodworth, President; Arden Mueller, Vice-President; Bev Reardon, Secretary; and Delores Hellweg, Treasurer. The Chaperone Committee, headed by Carol Thiele, this year compiled a list of all available faculty members who could serve as chaperones at any school function. Pep Club

The members of the Washington University Pep Club believe that reaching the goal of their club is as difficult a problem as that facing any organization on campus. This goal is to promote school spirit so that students at Washington can more fully enjoy their college days, and to encourage our athletic teams so that they know that we all appreciate their efforts.

In attempting to attain this goal, the club has sold various types of school identifications, sold refreshments at the games, and attempted to provide a colorful cheering section at both basketball and football games. A section on the fifty-yard line is reserved for the Pep Club at football games, and members are urged to wear their red and green jackets. Activity of the Pep Club is at its peak during the football season and declines sharply during the basketball season, perhaps because many games are played on week nights. Consequently the club is anxious to increase its ranks with those who are interested in becoming active members during both seasons.

Meetings are held on Thursday afternoons in Eads 102 and everyone is cordially invited. Club members feel sure that if all students really interested in joining the Pep Club do so, the organization will once again become a success.

National Collegiate Players

Election to National Collegiate Players is based on grade point average and outstanding leadership in collegiate and educational productions in the dramatic arts. It is open to all students regardless of major, providing they have shown unusual interest and achievement in the field of dramatic production. Candidates for membership must have appeared on stage as an actor and have worked in at least four other phases of the theatre. This honorary is the largest of its kind in the country.

This year Wiley Hance, president of the local chapter, and Shirley Hendricks attended the national meeting of the Fraternity in Chicago. The organization is allied with the American Educational Theatre Association.

Panel of Americans

Can Americans of different religions and races live in harmony? Answers to this question were sought and given by inter-religious, inter-racial discussion panels which made approximately twenty-five public appearances.

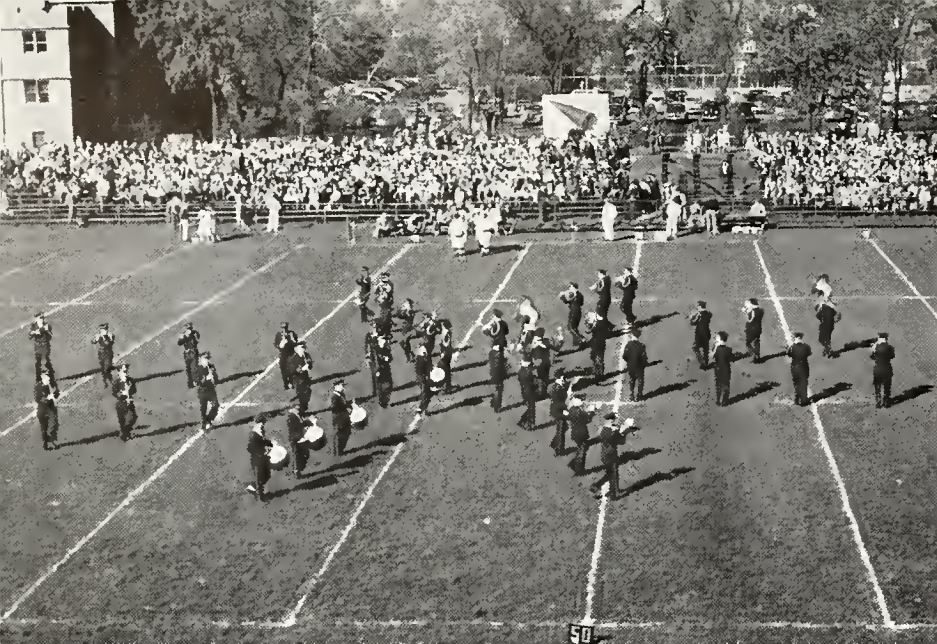

The following religions and races were usually represented: Protestant, Catholic, Jewish, Japanese-American, and Negro. The members did not speak as experts, but simply as students interested in getting open-minded discussion and objectivity into the issue of religious and racial tensions.

Paul Dobinsky served as student-manager of this year's group. Ernest Brandenburg, Assistant Professor of English, is the faculty sponsor.

The Band goes to Louisville.

This was the second year of existence for the University Band and a proud one it was! Even before school officially opened in September, the Band spent many hours drilling on the field in preparation for its first appearance. The spectacular performance, complete with newly acquired uniforms, at the first football game proved to the Band and the public that its work was not in vain. The original field formations and the exceptional playing ability of every member went hand in hand with a marvelous team spirit in making its work outstanding.

The Band performed at every home game with the same, if not improved, style and also travelled to the University of Louisville. That trip with the train ride, taxis and police escorts, the Brown Hotel and the many parties, the parade and the game, will always be memorable to the members of our 1949 Marching Band.

After the football season which included seven home games, the trip, two parades, several rallies, and lots of fun, the Band welcomed a week of well-earned vacation and then commenced playing at the basketball games. At the same time, it was rehearsing for its concert to be given in March under the direction of Mr. Leonard Berkowitz.

The student management staff underwent a change after the marching season when Charles Hamilton retired as Manager and Donald Wright was promoted to that position. Hamilton deserves considerable commendation, for it was he who organized the Band the previous year and, with Mr. Berkowitz, accomplished so much in making the Band the splendid organization that it is.

An exceptional concert on March 30 at Graham Chapel and a concert tour of high schools completed this year's activities with tremendous strides being made in promoting instrumental music at Washington U.

An extra word of thanks goes to Don Wright who made up most of the interesting formations performed on Francis Field at our football games. It isn't everyone who could sketch the "little red schoolhouse" and other clever formations on the field. Thanks, Don, for helping make 1950 a successful year for the Washington U. band.

Hamilton, Berkowitz (Director), Wright (Manager).

The post-concert plans of the University Band include a tour of the St. Louis area high schools desirous of presenting the Band's concert program. The construction and operation of a booth in the annual carnival sponsored by Thurtene, Junior Men's Honorary Fraternity, and performances at several ROTC military reviews hold forth as the Band's on-campus activities for the remainder of this school year. Future plans reveal hopes for a seventy-piece marching and concert band which, we sincerely hope, may again be privileged to perform for you.

Vesper Service in the Chapel

Christmas Carols in the Quad

University Choir

The Washington University Choir has, since its founding four years ago, made many notable contributions to the musical life of the campus. Their rehearsals are held each Tuesday under the capable direction of Mr. Howard Kelsey. Not only have the various religious services held at Graham Memorial Chapel throughout the year been enhanced by the beautiful music of the choir, but other organizations and churches in the city of St. Louis have enjoyed visits from them.

The focal point of the year's activities was a Christmas program, given annually at the initiation of the holidays. This year, as in other years, the service was held by candlelight in the chapel. A large audience was on hand to hear the choir's specially arranged presentation of traditional Christmas carols, and to join in the singing of many of them. The service was followed by the annual dinner given in Lee Hall by Mrs. Thomas E. Blackwell for the choir. An Easter program was presented in April, as well as a concert performance of the Brahms Requiem in May.

At the completion of a very successful season, the University Choir looks forward to those to come, in which its music may reach out to even greater audiences.

University Chorus

The Washington University Chorus opened a brand new school year last fall under the able leadership of a new director, Richmond McCluer. It immediately set about rehearsals for the annual Christmas program to be presented early in December. The program, which consisted of a Christmas Oratorio by Schutz, and several old English carols, was greatly enhanced by the accompanying ensemble, composed of members of the St. Louis Symphony and Philharmonic orchestras.

The spring semester brought an innovation, as the Chorus planned and executed the first opera ever performed by a WU group. Entitled "The Escape," it was a German work presented for the first time in the U. S. Such a work offered ample opportunity for solo, ensemble, and chorus work, in addition to the dramatic expression available only through opera.

Besides their concert work, the Chorus members often assembled at informal coke parties for a little casual harmonizing and for listening to recordings of previous work.

Having completed a very successful year, the chorus plans to present even greater seasons, promising to raise the group above all previous standards.

Weber Thomas, Retiring President

Quad Club

Following the precedent set by former illustrious Quad Shows, the 1950 Quad Show proved conclusively the old adage that "the show must (and can) go on!" After a rather slow start, rehearsals for "Keep It Clean," this year's show, got underway early in February, and rolled smoothly along toward the finished production, which was presented in University City High School Auditorium on the 26th, 27th, and 28th of April.

With a cast of ten principals and a chorus of thirteen girls and eleven men, Quad Show came into existence forty-one years ago. This show, "The Official Chaperone," written by Fanny Hurst, was the first of its kind to be attempted at Washington University. The club, officially organized in 1910, took its name from the quadrangle in front of Cupples I where the Hurst production had its canvas auditorium.

"Keep It Clean" was written by Irv Litvag, who combined pure wit and satire to produce one of the funniest of a long line of hilarious Quad Shows. The story deals with a naive young street cleaner, Johnny Evans, with the lofty ambition of owning and operating a "sprinkling truck" in order to clean the streets as his father and grandfather before him have done. Johnny's talent for singing and his complete lack of worldliness lead him and Biddy, a fellow street cleaner, into and out of a radio contract provided by the comic Hilda, and Peggy Cannon, a singer whose interest in Johnny is not merely from a professional standpoint. The delightfully whimsical story progresses from this point until the inevitable happy ending is reached.

The plot provided ample opportunity for the creative talents of the several composers of the show's excellent music, which was ably presented by an exceptionally fine singing chorus, under the direction of Carl Pitts, and by an equally good dancing chorus.

parts were filled by Michael McKay, Glenn Holse, Jack Fletcher, and Otto Womick. The entire production was under the direction of Jack Weaver, who gave in this, his first Quad Show, the promise of equally outstanding shows in the future.

Military training at Washington University is a program of progressive development pointed toward eventual commissioning in the Officers' Reserve Corps or the Regular Army of the United States. Beginning, for the first two years, with basic subjects common to all branches of the army, the instruction of those selected to complete the last two years in the senior division becomes highly specialized. Principles of good citizenship are constantly emphasized. In the senior division, cadets are given ample opportunity to develop those qualities of military leadership which the nation requires for adequate defense.

The thirty-ninth annual Military Ball, sponsored by the R. O. T. C., was held this year at the Gold Room of the Hotel Jefferson on February 21, 1950. Military ceremony and flourish were the order of the evening which was climaxed by the commissioning of honorary officers by Brig. General Emmett J. Bean, commanding officer of the Saint Louis Administration Center. Members of Pershing Rifles formed an honor guard for the ceremony with an archway of crossed sabres

Bears Open Successful

Washington 28

Mizzou School of Mines 13

Coach Irv Uteritz's debut as head coach here on the hill was made a successful one as sixty-five hundred fans watched the Bears trounce Rolla.

The season's opener with the Rolla Miners found an even fight in the first three quarters, scoring alternating. Coming from behind, Clodfelter tallied for the first touchdown, making the score 7-6 at the end of the half.

Another Rolla touchdown following an intercepted pass served to anger the Bears, who then proceeded to maul the miners, scoring 21 points in the final quarter. Clodfelter and Clamp accounted for the scoring, with Belt making the points after the tallies.

The Coaching Staff

Head coach Irv Uteritz came to Washington University in 1947 after establishing a fine record at Michigan as an All-Big Ten quarterback in the early '20's, and then coaching at Northwestern, Wisconsin and California. Luck has been with him in regard to being given capable assistants — Hovland, the all-conference guard from Wisconsin; Avery, another Michigan graduate and a veteran coach; Noble, who came here from Western

Season Trouncing Rolla

Washington 0

Memphis State 34

After an initial Washington threat was halted by an intercepted pass, Memphis Tigers marched 83 yards for their first touchdown early in the first quarter. From then on the game was as unbalanced as the score indicates, the Tigers combining a well-balanced attack and a stellar defense to maul the stunned Bears.

It was the first shutout defeat and only the third home loss for the Bruins since the return of Hilltop football in 1947. The single wing has given the Bears trouble in the past as the Missouri Valley loss two years ago indicates, but never to the extent of the Memphis game.

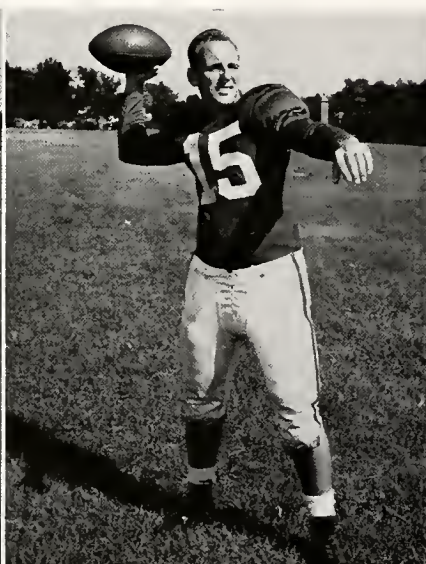

In the closing seconds of the first half, the Bears made their strongest bid for points. Trailing by seven points and aided by two fifteen yard penalties, they pushed the Southern boys to their 15-yard line. Three plays and a penalty brought the ball to the two-yard line with less than a half minute remaining, but an offside penalty ended the Bears' only serious scoring threat of the day.

Just about every tactic in the book was employed by both teams, as their offensive squads went mad at the wheel to run up a total of 66 points. Ball hungry from the Memphis game, the Bruins piled up fifteen first downs to the Titans eight. The Bears were quick in striking pay dirt. After the Titans had driven to the Bruins' 11, the "Utz" boys took over and promptly commenced their initial touchdown march. The Bears were even quicker to score in the second quarter. At the end of a six-touchdown parade in the first half, the Bears held a narrow 21-18 lead.

Bob Clodfelter, who scored four touchdowns, was the star of the game. Many penalties and fumbles dotted the game, but the Bears with superior depth and ground attack were able to defeat the air-minded Titans.

Well remembering their single defeat at Homecoming last year, the Bears departed for Kalamazoo with clinched teeth and a vengeful heart — returning with a decisive shutout victory and high morale.

A blocked kick in the third quarter gave the Bears the opportunity they needed to march down the field for the 1st touch-down of the day.

Hero was Don Belt who put the game on ice by kicking two field goals, one from the 17-yard line, and the other from the 13.

A 72-yard touchdown run by Bud Wiederholdt climaxed a 7-0 Bear victory over Butler. Late in the 1st quarter Wiederholdt tore loose from several would-be tacklers and raced 72 yards for the score. Belt, as usual, made the point.

A superb Bear defense, sparked by fullback Larry Milstead, held back all passing and rushing attempts by the Bulldogs.

A 24-yard sprint to a touchdown by Wiederholdt with the game only 5 minutes old gave the Bears an initial lead, which they quickly followed up by two more tallies in the next five minutes by Votava and Schamel.

After that, the Bears took it easy, waiting until the final quarter to score the "clinch" to end the game on a rousing 27-0 note.

The Tigers threatened only once, on an intercepted pass which carried them to the Bear 17-yard line.

Brilliant 21-0 Victory Climaxes Homecoming Day

Washington 21

Before a large Homecoming crowd, the Bears set a new Hilltop record of four straight shutouts by defeating the Rollins Tars. Once again, a superior ground game and a stalwart defense led the way to the victory.

The initial score came in the second quarter after a tightened Bear defense halted a Tar march to the 5-yard line. A 38-yard drive soon afterwards produced a touchdown by Votava, and gave the Bears a 7-0 half-time lead.

Spirited alums and students gathered around the bonfire site where cheers were given and the identity of the Homecoming Queen was revealed. Bears' Season Closes With 9-2 Record

Washington 19

University of the South 7

Thirteen seniors played their final game as the Bears closed out a successful season with a 19-7 victory over the Sewanee Tigers.

Bob Clodfelter gained individual honors by breaking the all-time Washington record for rushing by gaining 743 yards during the season.

Touchdowns by Clodfelter, Stephens, and Stocker proved too much for the Tigers, whose only TD came on a kickoff return in the 3rd quarter.

Louisville 35

A powerful Louisville U. team impressed their Homecoming crowd immensely by not only trouncing the Bears soundly but also by breaking the Bears' four-game shutout and five-game winning streak.

The game was not as lopsided as the score might suggest. The Cardinals held a mere 7-6 lead at halftime and the Bears by virtue of a touchdown sprint by Clodfelter took a 12-7 lead in the third quarter. However, from this point on, the superior power of the Cardinals evidenced itself.

Noble's Best Team Closes JV Season

The Bear Junior-Varsity had a good season this year and ended with a 3-win, 2-loss margin. Coach Noble said that it was "the best JV team I have coached since I came to the Hilltop."

The first tilt of the season was a 32-0 win over the Rolla Miners. The second game reversed the score to 34-13 in favor of the JV's from Southern Illinois College. The following week the revenge stored up for a return contest with SIC was rained out. A week later the junior-bears took it out on Rolla for a score of 39-13.

While the Homecoming parade was being enjoyed by most students at WU, a few saw Principia College Varsity, rated 30 points over the JV's, defeated by the little bruins to the tune of 21-18. This was the first time that the Junior-Varsity of the Bears received a Littenhouse rating.

The last game of the season was a bad one of all bad ones. The crew of Nobel lost to Western Illinois 21-6.

Jim Jeans, past star of WU football, and Charlie Winner, the famous scatback of two years ago, both coached the JV's and did an excellent job.

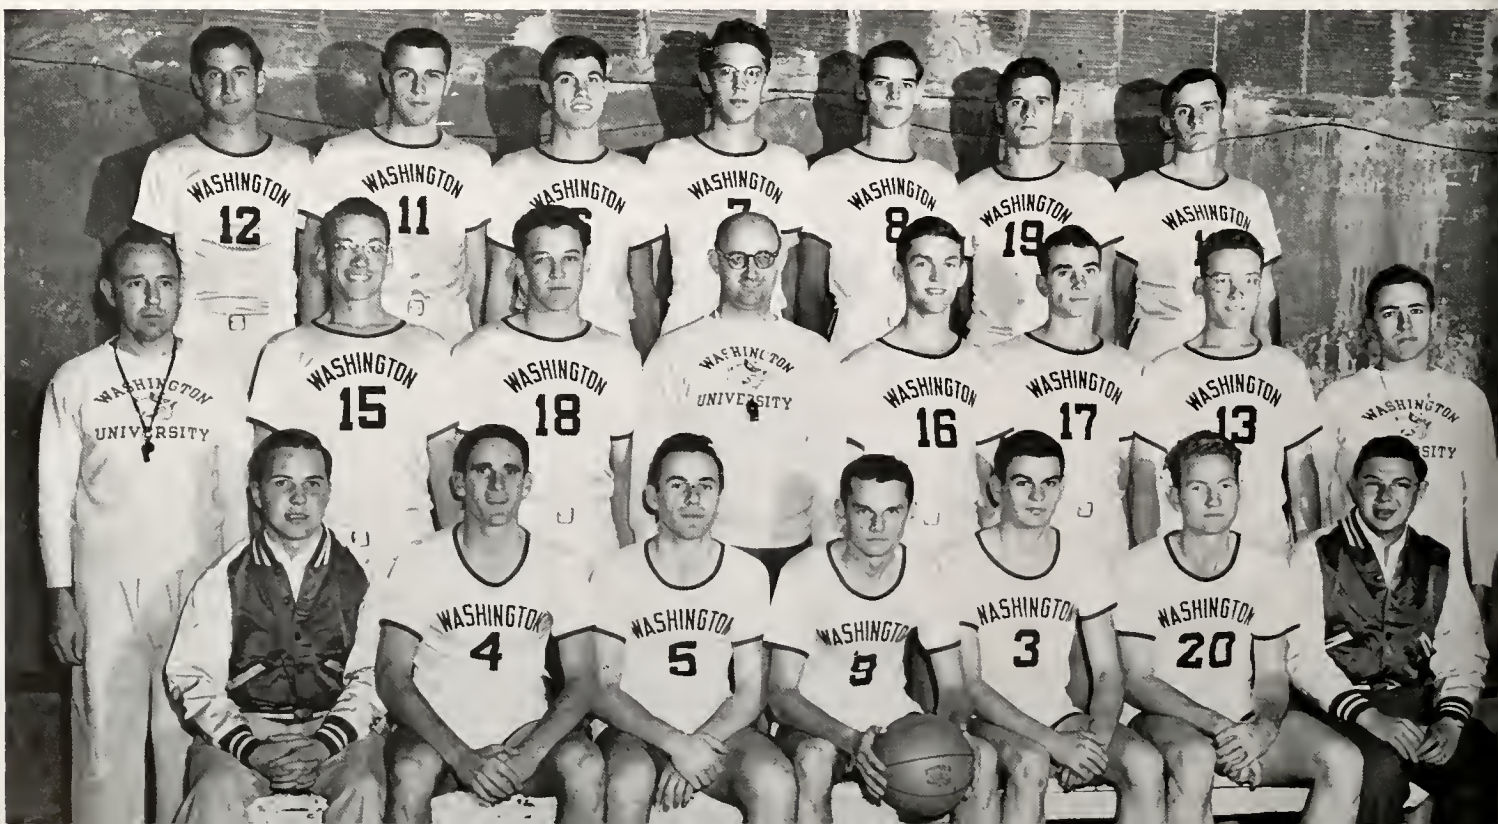

Basketball

Washington University basketball teams of the future will find it tough sledding to improve upon the season's record which the Bears of 49-50 posted this year. Basketball has been played here at Washington since 1904, and the best record of any previous season was the 13-5 mark set in 1919-20. That mark doesn't come close to the 17-6 record produced by this year's squad under the direction of coach Blair Gullion and assistants Ray Snyder and John Palcheff.

Another improvement upon last year's record was that of being the fourth-ranking defensive team in the nation. Sophomore star Pete Mollman received mid-western recognition when he was selected on the honorable mention team of Sporting News.

A further honor came to the Basketball Team when senior Bob Light was selected as "Athlete of the Year" in an all school poll conducted by Student Life.

1949-1950

The '49-'50 season was highlighted by the impressive home record of thirteen wins in fourteen starts although this was shaded somewhat by winning only four of nine on the road. No apologies are needed, however, for losses to such outstanding teams as Missouri, Louisville, Toledo, and Indiana State. It took but a few games for the Bear quintet to prove that the football team wasn't the only school squad that could boast a record over .750. Thus, the Washington U. amateur athletic policy introduced by Coach Gullion has proved successful on the court as well as on the gridiron.

Offensively, Dave Pearce was the team's leading scorer with a total of 258 points, an average of 11.2 per game. Close behind were Bob Light, 222; Gus Miller, 185; Pete Mollman, 181; Dick Pearce, 154; Hadley Hasemeier, 103; Norm Frolow, 40; and Charley Cain, 32.

The season opened at home with six straight impressive victories before dropping the first to Arizona State during Christmas holidays. The initial three games might be regarded as breathers but in them was demonstrated the form that would latter carry them through their most successful year in history.

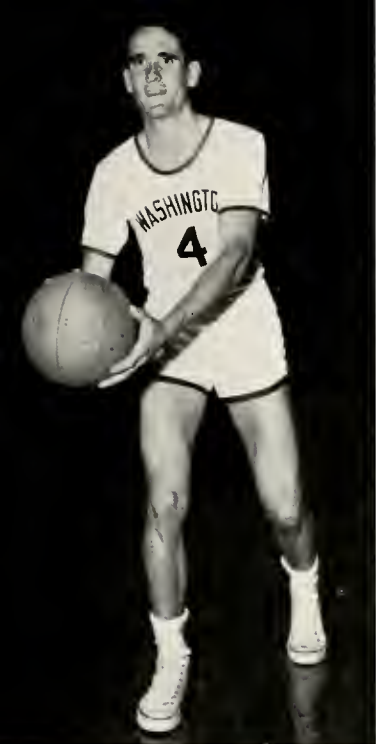

With a 6-1 record, the Bears journeyed to Nashville where they won a thriller from Vanderbilt 55-53 in what was their best road game of the year. "Old Faithful" worked no less than a half dozen times and the Southerners were completely baffled by it throughout the contest. Returning now to Missouri and "Sparky" Stahlcup's Tigers, the Bears put up a valiant fight before going down 49-43 in a rough and tumble game which saw four of our starters leave the game on personals.

Turning south again, this time to the blue grass country, we met a fast-breaking Louisville five and were no match for their sharp shooting, going down

After these three wins under our belt, the arrival of Louisville was being prepared for. Three times in a row the Kentuckians had handed us the short end of the scorebook, but this time we were ready. Before this game Louisville was ranked among the 15 top teams of the country, but we proceeded to knock them from this pedestal by coming from behind in the regular playing period to tie the score and then moving ahead in overtime to win going away 61-57.

The undaunted "Gullionmen" then mowed down Millikin and Missouri Mines for the second time this season before bowing to a powerful U. of Toledo squad in Toledo during the coal shortage. Wayne and Valparaiso were next on the list of victims and went down 33-28 and 51-40, respectively. Westminster then threw a clinker into the machine and avenged the earlier defeat we had handed them by upsetting us 53-54 in an overtime.

Season's 17-6 Record Best In 46 Years

The following game at Indiana State found the Hoosiers a little more than the Bears could handle and resulted in our last loss of the season. Back to the field house for a one night stand, Illinois Wesleyan was taken into camp in the season's highest scoring contest 76-67.

The season was closed by edging out

Creighton for the second time 40-38, and found three seniors: Bob Light, Richard Pearce, and Dick Greenblatt playing their last game for the Myrtle and Maroon. These men will surely be missed in the coming season, but with nine returning lettermen plus a fine junior varsity squad it is without a doubt that the Bears will be shooting for an even higher mark next year.

Swimming Team

The Washington University swimming team this year presented one of its best seasons. Lacking some outstanding swimmers of the 1948-49 seasons — Lloyd Lee, Fred Boyd, Bob Williams, Bob Jostes — the Bears made a slow start. They lost to Chicago University and a close one to DePauw University. The Bears sank Rolla 57-9, Indiana State 49-26, Illinois Wesleyan 41-34, Rolla 47-28, and the University of Nebraska 46-29.

In humbling Bradley 55-20 and the University of Louisville 49-28, their last two meets, the Bears finished one of their most successful seasons.

The relay team — composed of Don Gerber, Don Keller, William Pohlman, and Randy Martin — set a new 400 yard relay record of 3:47, the fastest yet in the school's history. William Pohlman set a new 50 yard free style record. Larry Sloop was a consistent point maker in the 200 yard breast stroke. John Van Nest, a fine back stroker, tied Staley's record in the 150 back with a one minute and 45 seconds which was originally set in 1940. Bob Strain continued his fine work in the breast stroke to help give us a well balanced team.

Tennis

A consecutive string of thirty-seven victories over a three-year period was compiled by the Washington netmen before they were finally defeated in mid-season by Missouri. The record of the 1949 season was nine wins and one loss. Ably assisted by Coach Summers, the Bears victimized such schools as Bradley, Indiana, Missouri, Western Kentucky, and Sewanee. Outstanding performers were Bob Ziervogel, one of Washington's all-time tennis stars; Bob Light, who won every match he played during the season; and Bob Savitt, equally proficient with the racket.

Golf

Undertaking a tough schedule, the Washington golf team, under the coaching of Mr. Snyder, was able to maintain a seasonal record of seven wins and six losses. Important victories were over Missouri Mines, Cape Girardeau Teachers, and Sewanee. The Bears lost, among others, to Notre Dame, Vanderbilt, and Missouri. Home games are played at the Crystal Lake Country Club.

Strong hitting, but lack of consistent fielding and pitching, illustrate the 1949 Bear baseball season. Coached by Stan London, in his first year as head coach, the Bears were able to defeat teams from Missouri U., Arkansas, James Milliken, Westminster, Concordia, and Illinois Wesleyan, but could garner only seven victories in the twenty-two games of a tough schedule which included five games with Big Nine foes. Strong batting was contributed by Westbury, Belt, Hebberger and Freeark.

Baseball

Despite the magnificent running of Charlie Schifferdecker, the Washington Cross-country team compiled a rather unimpressive record of two wins and four losses for the season.

Schifferdecker, one of the best Bruin harriers in history, set a Washington course record of 13:41.5 over the 2.8 mile course. Charlie captured five firsts and a second in competition. Norval Smith, Mike Bittner, and Jack Lee also turned in fine performances during the year.

Track

The 1949 track team proved to be one of the outstanding cinder teams in Washington history. The Bears turned in a record of five wins and two losses in dual and tri-meet competition. Victories were scored over Eastern Illinois Chicago, Oberlin, Missouri Mines, and Cape Girardeau. The losses were to Bradley and Southern Illinois.

The outstanding member of the squad and the best high-jumper in Bear history was Dick Lennertson, who turned in one sparkling performance after another. He set a new school high-jump of 6'5½". Also he tied with Dike Eddleman of Illinois for the Drake Relays championship with a leap of 6'6⅝". In 1948 he only barely missed a place on the U. S. Olympic squad.

Other consistent point winners were Ratliff in the two-mile, Schifferdecker in the mile, Zehr in the high hurdles, Snyder in the disc and shot, and the mile relay team of Brown, Graf, Heger, and Shepherd.

Lettermen for 1948 and '49 include: Art Bauer, Don Brown, Howard Dartt, Dave Essen, Dave Fowler, Louis Kohn, Dick Lennertson, and Gene Zehr.

"W" Club

The purpose of the "W" Club is to recognize through a student organization those athletes who have fulfilled the requirements for a varsity letter through participation in competitive athletics. This organization strives to foster good fellowship among varsity athletes and to encourage good sportsmanship. The club also assists the Athletic Department in carrying out its intramural program, as well as supporting any athletic policy established by the University. In his second year as faculty advisor, Dr. Arthur B. Cleaves was of great help in planning the year's program. Activities included a well-attended dinner party after the football season, and the second spring sports day, when high school athletes were invited to the campus to observe the athletic teams in action.

Intramurals

Theta Xi, defending intramural champion, held a slight two point lead at mid-season over Beta Theta Pi in the hard-fought race for the intramural trophy. Close behind in this order were: Sigma Chi, Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Fifteen fraternities entered this year's competition for the coveted trophy.

The Betas won the football championship by virtue of a 12-0 victory over Sigma Chi. In tennis SAE defeated Sigma Alpha Mu for the championship. Cross-country champs were Kappa Sigma, while Theta Xi won an easy victory in the annual swimming meet. Theta Xi defeated Sigma Nu for the handball title.

This year's race for the cup is proving one of the tightest in recent years. As the Sigma Chi Five swept through an undefeated season to win the basketball championship, the gap in the race was narrowed to only 19 points difference among the top three fraternities — Sigma Chi, Theta Xi, and Beta Theta Pi — with but six sports remaining: volleyball, table tennis, wrestling, softball, and track.

W. R. A.

The Women's Recreation Association, better known as W.R.A., had a full program of individual and team sports geared to the interests of each and every co-ed.

Hockey started off the team sports, followed by basketball, volleyball, and baseball. Individual sports were not to be outdone, and archery, badminton, bowling, golf, swimming, table tennis, and tennis commanded the full attention of their participants through various tournaments. The Dance Club furthered the popularity of modern dance on campus by giving a fine Christmas program and another performance in the spring.

Phoenix, the W.R.A. Honorary, which chooses for membership those juniors and seniors who have excelled in participation and service, selected Loretta Darigo and Bebe Phillips, who join Shirley Pinckert, Carol Wolf, and Marjorie Hoffeld as active members of the honorary.

In the intergroup bridge tournament, Kappa made the grand slam. Theta's badminton champs were triumphant again, with Alpha Chi rolling in the bowling cup. I.W.A. was deemed winner in the table tennis tournament. The basketball cup was retained by Delta Gamma for the seventh consecutive year. The final game was a thriller with the D. G.'s coming from behind to take a one point victory over Theta. The intramural swimming meet also proved to be close with Theta taking a first and Delta Gamma and Pi Phi second and third, respectively. Volleyball and baseball rounded out the spring season.

While the members of W.R.A. look proudly back on the year, they also eagerly anticipate an event more successful program in the future.

Although most people refer to the activities of the WUMS as "Ballet Swimming," the correct terminology is "Synchronized," or "Ornamental" swimming. Whatever you call it, however, fifty Washington University Mermaids meet for two hours every Monday night to practice watery gymnastics and perfection of strokes, preparing to demonstrate their talents in the Spring Water Carnival.

A small number of girls are selected by tryouts in the fall, and the group is conducted in the manner of an informal club at Wilson Pool. This year Betsy Kittrell was President and Georgia Dunbar was Vice-President. The highlights of the first semester's activities included a swimming meet at MacMurray College, in which Washington University took second place, and a Synchronized Swimming Symposium presented by the WUMS. Homecoming

The 1949 Homecoming week-end began Friday afternoon, November 4, with an Open House at the Student Center. Afterwards, spirited alums and students paraded to the bonfire site, where a rousing rally took place, and the 1950 Homecoming Queen, Shirley Dougherty, and her maids, were introduced.

Saturday morning, the annual parade proceeded from the campus through downtown St. Louis. The procession returned to the campus just in time for the big event of the afternoon, the football game against Rollins College. The record crowd cheered the Bears on to a 21-0 victory over Rollins.

Weekend

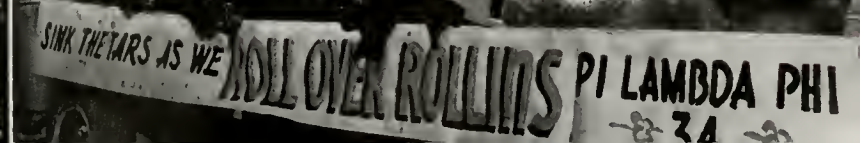

At half-time, prizes for the best floats were awarded to Alpha Xi Delta; the Architectural Society; and Kappa Alpha, who also rated the top award among fraternity house decorations.

Glen Gray played to a crowd of 3,000 in the Field House at the Homecoming Dance Saturday night. The high spot of the evening was the crowning of the Queen by Chancellor Compton.

The 1949 Homecoming was characterized by students as "one of the most successful Homecoming week-ends ever seen." The committee, headed by Weber Thomas, deserves much credit.

and best constructed creations. The field was first narrowed down by the Mortar Board girls who pinned ribbons on the persons they thought had the best corsages. Then, from the ribbon clad group, the winners were chosen by the judges, Mr. Dana O. Jensen and Dr. Mylonas.

The girls and their dates danced to the music of George Drake's band. One feature of the evening consisted of "cut dances" started by Mortar Board members, and continued by the rest of the girls.

The dance centered around the crowning of the Campus Caliph, a revised version of the Kampus King of former years. The Caliph's court consisted of the Grand Vizier, second in importance in ruling over the women of Washington University; and three other officers: the Pasha of Baghdad, the Bey of Mosul, and the Sultan of Guristani.

This year's Caliph, Art Andrew, was crowned by retiring King Charles Eberle. Art was escorted on an Arabian litter to the cushioned throne by six harem-clad members of Mortar Board. Preceding Art came his attendants, John Wright, Le Roy Vogts, Hank Prokop, and John Chassels.

Upon the completion of the ceremonies the girls continued their role as perfect hosts. All duties such as buying cokes, furnishing cigarettes, and holding coats for their dates were assumed by the girls. With clever corsages to cheer them on, the evening was one of many laughs and pleasant dancing.

Victory gardens galore.
Judges' night out.
Oh, you lucky girls.

Interfraternity Council

The Interfraternity Council has completed another year of successful cooperation in 1949-50. The year started in September, 1949, with the usual competition during rush week, but the start of school brought the working harmony which has characterized the Council's activities for so many years.

The year's highlights consisted of the IFC Winter and Spring formals, Greek Week, the IFC Sing, and of course the Council's Christmas Party for underprivileged children. The latter, one of the IFC's most important annual events, was held this year in Student Center and consisted of movies, songs, a magic show, refreshments, and gifts from Santa Claus for the children. Both children and students alike enjoyed it.

Seven members of the Council, accompanied by Deans Arno Haack and Don Fisher and Prof. Bob Fisher, attended the National Interfraternity Conference in Washington, D. C. over the Thanksgiving Holidays. These 10 representatives of the fraternities at Washington U. took active part in the Conference's proceedings, and ended by initiating a movement to hold the NIC in St. Louis in 1950. All who attended gained a great deal in the way of knowledge and experience.

The year 1949-50 was well spent, under the leadership of the IFC officers: Jack Minner, President; Dick Mellow, Vice-President; Phil Yates, Secretary; and Jim Rosborough, Treasurer.

Uncle Sam wants you!

Women's Panhellenic Association

Just one big happy family are the girls of the ten sororities on campus, as Panhellenic's primary aim is to promote and maintain the traditionally friendly spirit of cooperation among all sororities and students. Pan Hel members, the president and a delegate from each sorority, meet informally on Mondays at noon amid cigarette smoke, the click of knitting needles, and the verbal expression of new ideas filling the air to see that matters function smoothly on the sorority front at all times.

After a very early formal Rush Week — two weeks before registration to be exact — rushees exchanged nametags for pledge pins and began to plan for their pledge teas. A very successful Pledge Banquet was held at Medart's on October 25. The Intersorority Sing, followed by open houses in the sorority rooms for all parents and friends, was presented in Graham Chapel on November 15. Kappa Kappa Gamma won the trophy for the sing. On the next day, November 16, sorority girls attended a newly initiated activity of Pan Hel — the Panhellenic workshop. These informal discussions about sorority activities and business proved to be quite profitable to those attending. On February 16 sorority women brought their dates to the Gold Room of the Hotel Jefferson for the annual Panhellenic formal dance.

The law and order of this year's informal, bi-monthly meetings was in the hands of Shirley Pinckert, president; Carol Gillman, vice-president; Georgia Dunbar, secretary; Jane Martin, treasurer; and Eleanor Ruble, rush captain.

From its founding in 1928 Sigma chapter of AEPi has stood well-respected on the Hilltop campus. In campus affairs, Pi is represented in virtually every student activity and honorary. Pi has made genuine contributions to the university, in endeavoring to carry out its aims and ideals. In scholarship, Pi has ranked high, always among the top three Hilltop fraternities in scholastic average. Socially, Pi has provided great enjoyment for its brothers and pledges. Pi has much to be proud of for the year 1949-50 . . . a great rush season in which we pledged twenty-one men . . . our collie-shepherd mascot, Shandu, whose campus popularity cannot be denied . . . our new rathskellar . . . our housemother, Mother Cohen, and cook, Katie . . . our homecoming float . . . the three brothers who made medical school . . . and above all, the genuine spirit of co-operation and fraternalism prevailing within our chapter.

Beta Theta Pi

"Marching along in Beta Theta Pi..." strains of this popular Beta theme are well known to most everyone who has rubbed elbows with the Betas. Besides singing, the Betas made their presence on campus impressive through endeavors in athletics and activities. A precedent was set in intramural football this fall, when the Beta "Big Red Machine" battled their way to an undefeated season. Charlie Hamilton rattled his keys at the Pub, along with Newell Baker and several others, while Clarence Turley alternated his talents between football and Quad Show. In March, Beta joined with the Sig's and the Phi's to give the Miami Triad Dance, and in April the Anniversary Dance marked the 81st year since Beta came to Washington University.

The Independent Men's Association provides independent men with the opportunity of taking an active part in college life. In line with this purpose, I.M.A. has filled the calendar with numerous events. This past year produced the usual full crop of hayrides, formal and informal dances, and stag parties. Intramural football, volleyball, and softball likewise received their share of attention. Last fall the I.M.A. joined with other organizations in forming the Independent Student Council, which is concerned primarily with campus politics. The organization also took part in various all-school activities such as Homecoming, Thurtene Carnival, and campus-wide elections. Officers for the spring semester, elected in January, are: President, Dick Huning; Vice-President, Don Solomon; Secretary, Don Kellogg; Treasurer, Dick Godbold.

Kappa Alpha

As the old year '49 pulled himself across the finish line, the Kappa Alpha's gave the old boy a hearty farewell with fifteen "Y'all's." Many gay times, which included the pledge masquerade and the Christmas formal at the Hotel Statler, were had by all during the school year. Additions to the trophy collection included cups for the Thurtene Carnival booth "Screwball," and the Homecoming house and float decorations. With the happy memories of this year, we retire to the beautiful clime of the South to formulate plans that will make next year as successful. KA had a Dixie Weekend, March 24, 25, and 26, beginning with a formal secession from the Union. The weekend included the Dixie Ball in southern costumes, a Rebel party, and Secession picnic.

Individually, as well as collectively, the Pi Lams have remained very active in many phases of campus life. Spitzer, Weitman, Litvag, and Kirsch entered the ranks of Thurtene this year, Litvag later making ODK, and Archie Greenberg was our man who made the rolls of Lock and Chain. Herb Weitman, as parliamentarian of Student Senate, heads our clan members there, which includes Wolff Kirsch, Jules Gordon, and Bill Simon.

The S.A.E.'s will be remembered this year for their activities as well as their parties. The twenty-three newly pledged men were honored at a pledge formal held at Westborough. During the two semesters fraternity activities were under the capable leadership of Presidents Guy Wood, who also was in Thurtene and O.D.K., and Dick Mellow, who served as Vice-President of I.F.C. and as Director of Freshman Camp. Campus activities found many S.A.E.'s represented with Bill Swick playing varsity football, and Howard Dartt running with the varsity track team. Paul Corning was Co-Chairman of the Student Senate and John Lake served as Business Manager of Hatchet.

Sigma Nu had a well rounded and successful year under the leadership of Commander Jim Rosborough. Bob Fariss, Tau Beta Pi, and Joe Votava and Bob Clodfelter, both Thurtene, were among those who gave Sigma Nu its quota of keys and honors. The various social events of the year proved highly entertaining as the brothers cavorted at the "not fashionable but few" Crumb Hop, the annual Christmas Dance, and the matinee dances for every sorority. Thirty-one men, under the guiding hand of Bill Slaughter, composed the pledge class who modestly boasted they could make anything on campus but their grades. With Clodfelter and Vogts (the team's choice for most valuable back and lineman), Deutsch, McGroarity, Stocker, Stuches, and Votava as the famous football lettermen of Sigma Nu, the year really turned out to be well rounded and successful.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

Progress was the theme of the Sig Eps during 1949. With the re-establishment of the fraternity on campus in January the chapter has grown in size from its original ten until it now has forty-five actives and pledges. Highlights of the social calendar were the "Hay and a Hi" hayride and dance, the fall pledge dance and the winter dinner dance. The annual Lonely Hearts Ball was held shortly after the Spring semester began. Faculty sponsors are: Mr. John Hammann and Professor Eugene Stephens. Sig Eps have been active on campus this year — Bonnell in Delta Sigma Pi and Hatchet, Litton in Tau Beta Pi and Pi Mu Epsilon, Boettcher on Hatchet and Lock and Chain, Dixon and Niehaus in Campus Y, Brueggemann and Albert in the Band. Plans are being formulated for a chapter house near the campus to get next year's rushing off to a good start.

Jack Minner, president of IFC, Commandant of Pershing Rifles, and Cadet Colonel of the ROTC Battalion, is our busiest fellow. There are other "Zebs" doing all sorts of things and enjoying them. The Alpha Xi Chapter of Zeta Beta Tau has had a good year socially, culturally, athletically, scholastically, and fraternally. Next year our chapter will be host to the National Convention; also, our brilliant boys won the IFC pledge scholarship cup for the Fall Semester. Theta Xi

The past year was one of the most successful in the forty-five year history of Theta Xi. Last year's intramural efforts were brought to a successful climax when we annexed the Intramural Athletic Cup for the second time. Success in sports continued on the varsity fields: Prokop and Paschen in football, the Pearce twins in basketball, and seven men on the baseball squad. In activities, Ray McFarland continued to collect keys, while George McCue became Editor-in-Chief of Student Life. Socially, we started off the year with a party for our new chapter at Rolla, followed by the Ninth Annual Sadie Hawkins Bawl.

Grand Master, Clarence Whisler

Delta Sigma Delta, national dental fraternity, is the oldest and largest organization of its kind, and was the first Greek letter society to restrict its membership to students in dental schools or practitioners of dentistry. Upsilon Chapter, although having no fraternity house, uses the Dental School for the hub of its activities. Although scholarship is stressed, the yearly calendar features dances, picnics, ball games and the like. Officers for the year are: Clarence Whisler, Grand Master; Ermal O'Brien, Worthy Master; James Burcham, Scribe; Harland Jones, Treasurer; Neal Neuton, Historian; Hadley Hasemeier, Senior Page; Richard Ellis, Junior Page; William Frye, Tyler. Upsilon Chapter boasts Hadley Hasemeier, starter on the Hilltopper's most successful basketball team. Scholastic honors have been gained by Randle Gardner, Keith Marcroft, and Norman Veda.

Delta Sigma Phi

Delta Sigma Phi's appearance at Washington University can be traced to January 8, 1950, when three members of the fraternity who had transferred from James Millikin University merged with seven other students to organize the Sigma Club, a local organization created for the purpose of petitioning Delta Sigma Phi for a charter. Within a few weeks the group had expanded to more than twice that number, and, on March 19, 1950, 17 Sigma Club members were initiated into the fraternity as members-at-large at James Millikin. Following the receipt of its charter, which was expected in May of this year, the university's newest fraternity planned to hold "The Carnation Ball," its spring formal, to commemorate the event. The membership of Delta Sig includes Marty Bowerman, W.U.'s Sports Publicity Director, and its officers, who are: President, Robert L. Hesse; Vice-President, Daniel Momjian; Secretary, Ernest Gerhardt; Treasurer, Robert Christie.

Alpha Chi began the semester with twenty gay pledges. Jane Martin held the reins, with Lucille Strippgen training pledges and Carol Robertson juggling books. Carol also was a Mortar Board girl and Carol Thiele was vice-president of Chimes. Mary Lou Cool copped scholastic honors in Alpha Lambda Delta. Rose trellises decorated Student Center for the Pledge Dance. Homecoming found Pat Von Rump a maid of the court. With the Christmas holiday came our pledge-planned Yuletide feasting, complete with a laugh-filled Santa skit mimicking the actives. Hatchet royalty proudly titled Doris Andrews. Finally, sweet music and stars of our Spring Formal ended a wonderful year for A.X.O.

Alpha Xi Delta

Alpha Xi Delta started off the school year by receiving the award for the best sorority Homecoming float. Dolores Hilfiker won scholastic recognition by her initiation into Sigma Delta Pi. Alpha Xi Delta was again represented in a variety of activities on campus. Ellie Jo Ruble guided bewildered freshmen women through a hectic rush week as Pan-Hellenic Rush Chairman. Betty Garvelman and June Hanchett took part in the Quad Show while Doris Spruss did outstanding work as co-chairman of the Cosmopolitan Club. Beginning our social season was the annual pledge dance held at the Chase Hotel. This was followed by the Christmas Cozy and an informal party given by the pledges. The year was climaxed with a Dinner Dance and the Senior Farewell Luncheon.

This has been a big year for Tri Delta, and a happy one, too. We've lots of swell memories, like the house party last spring with all the fun and good food. We recall how everyone put their best foot forward to work on the float. There was much excitement over pinnings, engagements, marriages in the chapter. Danny Dowell, our dashing red-haired president, was Sigma Phi Epsilon sweetheart. On the more serious side, Pat Cavner was elected to Mortar Board, and Jinx Bellows made Eta Mu Pi, retailing honorary. All in all we've enjoyed this exciting year in Tri Delta, working and playing together.

The D.G. ship sailed full speed ahead this year under Captain Carol Wolf. Executives were plentiful as usual with Liz Hope as Hatchet Editor . . . Jean Claire Bentrup, President of the Student Religious Council . . . Moir Brown was Publicity Chairman of Quad Show, President of Red Cross and Treasurer of the Junior Class . . . Harriet Wunderlich, Student Senate Secretary . . . Doris Reuckert, Secretary of the Campus Y . . . and a myriad of other anchors in various campus organizations. Honorarily speaking there was Liz Hope, Mortar Board . . . Moir Brown and Jean Claire Bentrup vending Chimes . . . and Susie Jaudes, Marilyn Compton and Pat Barnhart flashing Freshman Commission pins.

After a series of rush parties climaxed by a formal rush tea, we pinned twenty-three pledges. In honor of our pledge class we had a Halloween barn dance and weiner roast at Valley Mount Ranch. Bonnie Ross supplied the music and entertained us at our winter formal at Meadowbrook Country Club. Election came and along with it our Founder's Day Banquet and Installation at the Regency Room at the Hotel Chase. We took time out from working on Thurtene, donned our formals and spent a wonderful evening at the Columbian Club. We were quite proud of Ileana Yawitz who had the double honor of being elected to Alpha Lambda Delta and treasurer of the Sophomore Class.

The Independent Women's Association is an organization open to all unaffiliated undergraduate women. Our primary purpose is social. We give monthly supper parties, bi-annual dances, hayrides and have informal gatherings with the Independent Men's Organization. Members of I.W.A. are active in all campus affairs; Margaret Queen, Berle Epstein, members of Mortar Board; Peggy Eng, Delores Hellweg, members of Freshman Commission; Janet Schumacher, President of the Independent Student Council; and Nancy Visser, Vice-President of the Social Work Club and member of WUMs. I.W.A. is especially proud of its T-B sellers Erikka Skibbe and Sarah Bush, who ranked first and second on the campus for last year. We have held the organizational record for largest contributions for the past two years.

Kappa Alpha Theta

Theta's kite has flown higher than ever this year, under the capable leadership of Dottie Copp (president), Maggie Moehlenbrock (vice-president), Billie Sue Dickie (recording secretary) and Joanne Dille (treasurer). We've accomplished great things and had a wonderful time doing them. The Homecoming Float was unique (in that it collapsed before it got as far as the reviewer's stand) and Tink Huesgan was a Homecoming Maid at the Dance that night. Barb Bassett and Wayne Garrison were both Quirk Girls of the Month and Mary Ann Schaeffer was elected secretary of the sophomore class. But if one thrilling moment could be chosen above all the rest, we all agree the winning of the Bear Skin Follies Trophy would be it!

Kappa successfully started the new school year with a big house party at Sugar Tree. Kappa Kappa Gamma won the cup in the Bridge Tournament and the Sorority Sing. Peggy Jensen and Betsy Kittrell represented Kappa on Mortar Board and Betty O'Donnell on Alpha Lambda Delta. Phi Mu

From the first to the last, Phi Mu's had plenty of fun in 'fifty. The year started off with a bang-up weekend get-acquainted party for actives and pledges. Then the spotlight was turned on our wonderful pledges at the sparkling pledge dance at the Chase. For our dress-down party there was the annual Hobo Prom with prizes for the "Cruddiest Costumes."

Seen on Campus: Bev Beardan and BeBe Phillips trying their best to sell their "last" Chimes . . . Lorna Marshall finding time for Student Life between dashes to Freshman Commission meetings . . . Doris Sanford trilling away in Quad Show . . . Debator Jane Able explaining why women should work . . . All sorts of people running to meetings hither and yon . . . that too was Phi Mu in 'fifty.

Pi Phi arrows have found their marks in many phases of campus life this year. The first volley was directed toward rushees, and tallies showed Pi Phi to have a perfect score of twenty-four pledges. Tabulations also favored us in the scholarship field of competition, with Pi Phi holding the intersorority scholarship cup this fall for the second consecutive semester. Big event of the fall was the gala Homecoming week-end when Pi Phi Shirley Dougherty was chosen Queen. Janet Schubert was Maid of Honor in the queen's court. The Zetas may look back with pride upon their accomplishments this past year. Everyone was dashing in and out of the room going from one activity to another. Hermine Seiser, Danny Jansen and Laura Swain made a fine showing in WUMS; Laura also active in Thyrsus; Eloise Kern had many leads in Chorus and proved our capable song-leader; Mary Ann Jeude continued on her amazing sports career and led the Zetas to the Volleyball and baseball trophies in 1949. She also engaged in many "Y" activities. Doris Wylder was in the dancing chorus of Quad Show and also made Alpha Lambda Delta. Pat Clark, too, had a position in an honorary — Mortar Board. Queenly speaking, Helen East was voted an honorary major by the ROTC's.
